Soviet Metro Stations Damon Murray, Stephen Sorrell, 2019 For us said Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev in his memoirs there was something supernatural about the Metro Visiting any of the dozen or so Metro networks built across the Soviet Union between the 1930s and 1980s it is easy to see why Rather than the straightforward systems of London Paris or New York these networks were used as a propaganda artwork a fusion of sculpture architecture and art that combined Byzantine medieval baroque and constructivist ideas and infused them with the notion that communism would mean a communal luxury for all Today these astonishing spaces remain the closest realization of a Soviet utopia Following his bestselling quest for Soviet Bus Stops Canadian photographer Christopher Herwig has completed a subterranean expedition photographing the stations of each Metro network of the former USSR From extreme marble and chandelier opulence to brutal futuristic minimalist glory Soviet Metro Stations documents this wealth of diverse architecture Along the way Herwig captures the elements that make up this singular Soviet experience neon concrete escalators signage mosaics and relief sculptures all combine to build a vivid map of the Soviet Metro Soviet Metro Stations includes an essay by the leading architectural and political writer Owen Hatherley author of the acclaimed books Landscapes of Communism 2015 Trans Europe Express 2018 and The Adventures of Owen Hatherley in the Post Soviet Space

Walling, Boundaries and Liminality Agnes Horvath,Marius Ion Bența,Joan Davison,2018-08-06 Contemporary challenges related to walls borders and encirclement such as migration integration and endemic historical conflicts can only be understood properly from a long term perspective This book seeks to go beyond conventional definitions of the long dur e by locating the social practice of walling and encirclement in the broadest context of human history integrating insights from archaeology and anthropology Such an approach far from being simply academic has crucial contemporary relevance as its focus on origins helps to locate the essential dynamics of this practice and provides a rare external position from which to view the phenomenon as a transformative exercise with the area walled serving as an artificial womb or matrix The modern world with its ingrained ideas of borders nation states and other entities often makes it is very difficult to gain a critical distance and detachment to see beyond conventional perspectives The unique approach of this book offers an antidote to this problem Cases discussed in the book range from Palaeolithic caves the ancient walls of G bekli Tepe Jericho and Babylon to the foundation of Rome the Chinese Empire medieval Europe and the Berlin Wall The book also looks at contemporary developments such as the Palestinian wall Eastern and Southern European examples Trump s proposed Mexican wall the use of Greece as a bulwark containing migration flows and the transformative experience of voluntary work in a Calcutta hospice In doing so the book offers a political anthropology of one of the most fundamental yet perennially problematic human practices the constructing of walls As such it will appeal to scholars of sociology anthropology and political theory
