Easwaran, 2011-12-13 In this companion to his best selling translation of the Bhagavad Gita Easwaran explores the essential themes of this much loved Indian scripture Placing the Gita in a modern context Easwaran shows how this classic text sheds light on the nature of reality the illusion of separateness the search for identity and the meaning of yoga The key message of the Gita is how to resolve our conflicts and live in harmony with the deep unity of life through the principles of yoga and the practice of meditation Easwaran grew up in the Hindu tradition and learned Sanskrit from an early age A foremost translator and interpreter of the Gita he taught classes on it for forty years while living out the principles of the Gita in the midst of a busy family and community life In the Gita Sri Krishna the Lord doesn't tell the warrior prince Arjuna what to do he shows Arjuna his choices and then leaves it to Arjuna to decide Easwaran too shows us clearly how these teachings still apply to us and how like Arjuna we must take courage and act wisely if we want our world to thrive The Bhagavad Gita Eknath

Easwaran, 2007 The Bhagavad Gita The Song of the Lord is the best known and most read of all the Indian scriptures featured on college reading lists quoted in yoga magazines found in all good libraries and bookstores and recognized as part of the wisdom literature of all time Easwaran held the Gita to be India's greatest gift to the world and he found in it his most profound source of inspiration He started teaching classes on the Gita in Berkeley in the sixties and continued to bring his unfailing enthusiasm to a wide audience throughout his life Readers have always appreciated the authenticity of his translation which regularly tops the bestseller list of its genre and has consistently been the bestselling book for Nilgiri Press The Gita opens dramatically on a battlefield Prince Arjuna a great warrior and a man of principle is about to face the treacherous relatives who have deprived his elder brother of his crown Just as the battle is about to begin however Arjuna collapses in his chariot his bow falling to his side unable to face the inevitable slaughter ahead of him Arjuna's struggle is profoundly modern He has lost his way on the battlefield of life and turns to a higher spiritual power to find the path once again About to go into the fight of his life he asks direct uncompromising questions of his spiritual guide Sri Krishna Acting as Arjuna's friend and charioteer Krishna is in reality the Lord himself In seven hundred verses of sublime instruction Krishna talks of living and dying of loving and working of the nature of the soul and the paths we can take to realize our true Self our true stature For as Easwaran points out the Gita is not what it seems it's not a dialogue between two mythical figures at the dawn of Indian time The battlefield is a perfect backdrop but the Gita's subject is the war within the struggle for self mastery that every human being must wage to live a life that is meaningful fulfilling worthwhile Arjuna represents each of us every person of action and principle today Krishna is not an external deity but the spark of divinity that lies at the core of the human personality And this is no external dialogue but one that takes place within us as we struggle like Arjuna to do what is right Easwaran's genius is to show us that the Gita is not just a text that is interesting historically and culturally it's a practical manual a book of choices that offers guidance for whatever challenges we face It places human destiny entirely in human hands The range of paths the Gita describes for spiritual realization of action wisdom devotion and meditation is broad enough to appeal to all our different personalities Great figures like Gandhi turned to the Gita again and again and so can we
