Race and the Arts in Education is the first edited volume to examine how race operates in and through the arts in education. Until now no single source has brought together such an expansive and interdisciplinary collection in exploration of the ways in which music, visual art, theater, dance, and popular culture intertwine with racist ideologies and race making. Drawing on Critical Race Theory, contributing authors bring an international perspective to questions of racism and anti-racist interventions in the arts in education. The book's introduction provides a guiding framework for understanding the arts as white property in schools, museums, and informal education spaces. Each section is organized thematically around historical, discursive, empirical, and personal dimensions of the arts in education. This handbook is essential reading for students, educators, artists, and researchers across the fields of visual and performing arts education, educational foundations, multicultural education, and curriculum and instruction.

Routledge Handbook of Body Studies Bryan

Turner, 2012-07-24 In the last three decades the human body has gained increasing prominence in contemporary political debates and it has become a central topic of modern social sciences and humanities. Modern technologies such as organ transplants, stem cell research, nanotechnology, cosmetic surgery, and cryonics have changed how we think about the body. In this collection of thirty original essays by leading figures in the field, these issues are explored across a number of theoretical and disciplinary perspectives including pragmatism, feminism, queer theory, post-modernism, post-humanism, cultural sociology, philosophy, and anthropology. A wide range of case studies which include cosmetics, diet, organ transplants, racial bodies, masculinity, and sexuality, eating disorders, religion, and the sacred body, and disability are used to appraise these different perspectives. In addition, this Handbook explores various epistemological approaches to the basic question: what is a body? It also offers a strongly themed range of chapters on empirical topics that are organized around religion, medicine, gender, technology, and consumption. It also contributes to the debate over the globalization of the body: how have military technology, modern medicine, sport, and consumption led to this contemporary obsession with matters corporeal? The Handbook's clear, direct style will appeal to a wide undergraduate audience in the social sciences, particularly for those studying medical sociology, gender studies, sports studies, disability studies, social gerontology, or the sociology of religion. It will serve to consolidate the new field of body studies.

The Dance Claimed Me Peggy Schwartz, Murray Schwartz, 2011-01-01

Pearl Primus 1919-1994 blazed onto the dance scene in 1943 with stunning works that incorporated social and racial protest into their dance aesthetic. In The Dance Claimed Me, Peggy and Murray Schwartz, friends and colleagues of Primus, offer an intimate perspective on her life and explore her influences on American culture, dance, and education. They trace Primus's path from her childhood in Port of Spain, Trinidad, through her rise as an influential international dancer, an early member of the New Dance Group whose motto was "Dance is a weapon," and a pioneer in dance anthropology. Primus traveled extensively in the United States, Europe, Israel, the Caribbean, and Africa, and she played an important role in presenting authentic African dance to American audiences. She engendered controversy in both her private and professional lives, marrying a white Jewish man during a time of segregation and challenging black intellectuals who opposed the primitive in her choreography Her political protests and mixed race tours in the South triggered an FBI investigation even as she was celebrated by dance critics and by contemporaries like Langston Hughes For The Dance Claimed Me the Schwartzes interviewed more than a hundred of Primus s family members friends and fellow artists as well as other individuals to create a vivid portrayal of a life filled with passion drama determination fearlessness and brilliance
