

opportunity of doing research and the results of various researches have helped America to be a force to reckon with in giving good oral health to its citizens. This institution has an all-round focus for the dentistry students and patients and I wish to have the opportunity to prove my academic prowess at this institution and make a contribution to the profession of Dental medicine through research community.

2. During my childhood, I never thought that I would pursue a career in dentistry because of the unreasonable fear of the unknown regarding this profession. As years passed, I came to know more about dentistry from my extensive reading and pleasant experiences with many dentists which aroused my curiosity to know more about it. My volunteer exertion and researches helped me to decide to delve into the field of dentistry. Even though dentistry in the United States is more advanced, there is sheer negligence on the part of the public. People are not aware of how important their oral health is and they only come to meet a dentist when they feel severe pain in their teeth. Understanding the fact that the decay of a tooth will precipitate into other diseases, I took a strong decision to pursue my profession in dentistry since it needs commitment and dedication toward the patients.

Graduate Endodontics Clinic at the University Of Washington School Of Dentistry is the institution where I have been working for one and a half years and spent around five to seven hours per week. I was entrusted there to develop X-ray films and to set up trays for treatment. I also had the opportunity to observe doctors performing root canal treatments and various Endodontic procedures. Dental procedures and the use of instruments have not been the only aspects of dentistry that I learned there. The doctors I have been working with are graduate dental students, therefore, I was able to observe how much time and effort they have invested to succeed there. The doctors always shared with me that their hard work has always paid off at the
