At the same time upwardly mobile urban professionals have struggled to reconcile their parents assimilationist goals with membership in a multicultural elite all while trying to carve out a new kind of belonging for their own children who are neither white nor truly people of color Kang recognizes this existential loneliness in himself and in other Asian Americans who try to locate themselves in the country's racial binary There are the businessmen turning Flushing into a center of immigrant wealth the casualties of the Los Angeles riots the impoverished parents in New York City who believe that admission to the city's exam schools is the only way out the men's rights activists on Reddit ranting about intermarriage and the handful of protesters who show up at Black Lives Matter rallies holding Yellow Peril Supports Black Power signs Kang's exquisitely crafted book brings these lonely parallel climbers together and calls for a new immigrant solidarity one rooted not in bubble tea and elite college admissions but in the struggles of refugees and the working class Empire City Kenneth T.
