There are a number of well-documented studies on the effects of alcohol on the performance of drivers. These studies have shown that alcohol consumption leads to a decrease in the ability to process visual information, a decrease in the ability to make decisions, and a decrease in the ability to maintain a steady course. These effects are more pronounced at higher levels of alcohol consumption and are more likely to occur in more complex driving situations. The results of these studies suggest that alcohol consumption can significantly impair driving performance and increase the risk of accidents.

They have also suffered an additional setback with the collapse of the price of oil. They need to diversify.
