

A close-up photograph of a person's hands inspecting a small, cylindrical metal component. The person is wearing a magnifying glass over their left eye and a black wristwatch on their left wrist. They are holding the component with both hands, and a small amount of liquid is being poured from a glass vial onto it. A green lamp is positioned above the work area, casting a focused light. In the background, there are various tools and equipment, including a red object and a collection of metal parts.
