

San Francisco Crime Analysis – Report

-By Rohit Dandona and Sameer Darekar

Introduction:

From 1934 to 1963, San Francisco was infamous for housing some of the world's most notorious criminals on the inescapable island of Alcatraz. Today, the city is known more for its tech scene than its criminal past. But, with rising wealth inequality, housing shortages, and a proliferation of expensive digital toys riding BART to work, there is no scarcity of crime in the city by the bay. This project examines the San Francisco Police Department crime records between January 1st 2003 and May 13st 2015. It visualizes the trends of major crimes and drugs in the city across time and locations. This analysis has been carried out to facilitate law enforcement officers to enhance their strategies based on time and location.

R and Tableau have been used for data processing and visualizations.

Dataset:

This dataset contains incidents derived from SFPD Crime Incident Reporting system. The data ranges from 1/1/2003 to 5/13/2015.

Data fields:

- Dates - timestamp of the crime incident
- Category - category of the crime incident
- Descript - detailed description of the crime incident
- DayOfWeek - the day of the week
- PdDistrict - name of the Police Department District
- Resolution - how the crime incident was resolved
- Address - the approximate street address of the crime incident
- X - Longitude
- Y - Latitude

Data-Preprocessing:

The date field in the dataset is a timestamp present in the "MM/dd/yyyy hh:mm:ss" format and is not of much utility if used as such.

Tableau provides the facility of parsing through a timestamp through a utility called "DATEPART " and extract specific segments of the timestamp. For example:

```
DATEPART("hour",[Dates])
```
