You need to replace a broken monitor on a desktop system. You decide to replace it with a spare monitor that wasn't being used. Even though the monitor is made by a different manufacturer than the desktop computer, it still works with the monitor.

Which computer design concept makes this possible?

- Componentization
- Standardization
- Firmware
- Plug and Play -   *Answer: Standardization

Explanation

Standardization allows components from different manufacturers to be interchangeable. If a component meets the specified standards, it will work in the computer, regardless of manufacturer.

Componentization means that a computer is a combination of several constituent parts that can be easily replaced by a field-replaceable unit (FRU). Firmware is a special type of software that has been embedded in the memory of a hardware component. Plug and play allows devices to work with computers without the need for additional configuration on the computer.

Drag the computer function on the left with its associated hardware component on the right. (Each option may be used more than once.) -   Answers:

Hard disk = Long-term storage

Printer = Output
