COVID-19 Pandemic and the Social Determinants of Health Rosemary M. Caron,Ronica Nicole Rooks,Stefania Salmaso,Mahmoud Kandeel,2024-07-15 The COVID 19 pandemic has disproportionately affected those population sectors that experience inequality Specifically marginalized racial and ethnic populations with pre existing health conditions those living in poverty those possessing a low education level hourly wage employees etc have experienced an excess burden of COVID 19 morbidity and mortality compared to their White counterparts in developed countries The interaction of the social determinants of health with a novel virus has made visible the inequities that have been hidden or accustomed to in many communities globally As we work to end the current pandemic we must consider the post COVID 19 pandemic era and address the social determinants of health so that populations start from a place of health as opposed to a place of disease for the next public health challenge Syndemic research has demonstrated the interaction among socio cultural factors socio economic factors structural factors and individual factors collectively referred to as the social determinants of health and infectious disease epidemics e g COVID 19 AIDS and social epidemics e g structural racism These interactions can exacerbate and sustain adverse health outcomes for marginalized populations How can communities improve the social determinants of health for impoverished populations The importance of doing so would have implications not only for the health status of communities but could also improve economic conditions for these geographic areas Addressing the social determinants of health for marginalized populations has the potential to improve health for all
