Reilly, 2019-09-03 First book length archaeological study of a nonelite white population on a Caribbean plantation Archaeology below the Cliff Race Class and Redlegs in Barbadian Sugar Society is the first archaeological study of the poor whites of Barbados the descendants of seventeenth century European indentured servants and small farmers Redlegs is a pejorative to describe the marginalized group who remained after the island transitioned to a sugar monoculture economy dependent on the labor of enslaved Africans A sizable portion of the white minority the Redlegs largely existed on the peripheries of the plantation landscape in an area called Below Cliff which was deemed unsuitable for profitable agricultural production Just as the land on which they resided was cast as marginal so too have the poor whites historically and contemporarily been derided as peripheral and isolated as well as idle alcoholic degenerate inbred and irrelevant to a

functional island society and economy Using archaeological historical and oral sources Matthew C Reilly shows how the precarious existence of the Barbadian Redlegs challenged elite hypercapitalistic notions of economics race and class as they were developing in colonial society Experiencing pronounced economic hardship similar to that of the enslaved albeit under very different circumstances Barbadian Redlegs developed strategies to live in a harsh environment Reilly's investigations reveal that what developed in Below Cliff was a moral economy based on community needs rather than free market prices Reilly extensively excavated households from the tenantry area on the boundaries of the Clifton Hall Plantation which was abandoned in the 1960s to explore the daily lives of poor white tenants and investigate their relationships with island economic processes and networks Despite misconceptions of strict racial isolation evidence also highlights the importance of poor white encounters and relationships with Afro Barbadians Historical data are also incorporated to address how an underrepresented demographic experienced the plantation landscape Ultimately Reilly's narrative situates the Redlegs within island history privileging inclusion and embeddedness over exclusion and isolation Avatars contemporains des récits d'esclaves Judith Misrahi-Barak, 2005 Issu d'un colloque organis en 2003 l'Universit P Val ry ces textes analysent les oeuvres de fiction contemporaines s inspirant des r cits d esclaves des XVIIIe et XIXe si cles Ils s interrogent sur l int r t port ce genre de r cit tant du point de vue des crivains que des lecteurs Washed by the Gulf Stream Maria McGarrity, 2008 This is an historically comparative postcolonial study asserting the dialogic relation between Irish and Caribbean narrative form The book focuses on the demise of empire and the role of geography in creating an island imaginary for writers from The Irish in Us Diane Negra, 2006-02-22 A colleciton that looks at how Irishness has James Joyce to Jamaica Kincaid become a discursive commodity within popular culture Everyday Life in the Early English Caribbean Jenny Shaw, 2013 Set along both the physical and social margins of the British Empire in the second half of the seventeenth century Everyday Life in the Early English Caribbean explores the construction of difference through the everyday life of colonial subjects Jenny Shaw examines how marginalized colonial subjects Irish and Africans contributed to these processes By emphasizing their everyday experiences Shaw makes clear that each group persisted in its own cultural practices Irish and Africans also worked within and challenged the limits of the colonial regime Shaw's research demonstrates the extent to which hierarchies were in flux in the early modern Caribbean allowing even an outcast servant to rise to the position of island planter and underscores the fallacy that racial categories of black and white were the sole arbiters of difference in the early English Caribbean The everyday lives of Irish and Africans are obscured by sources constructed by elites Through her research Jenny Shaw overcomes the constraints such sources impose by pushing methodological boundaries to fill in the gaps silences and absences that dominate the historical record By examining legal statutes census material plantation records travel narratives depositions interrogations and official colonial correspondence as much for what they omit as for what they include Everyday Life in the Early English Caribbean uncovers perspectives that would otherwise remain obscured This book
