

Annotate the Passage

In 1852, the influential African American Frederick Douglass was invited to give a speech in Rochester, New York on the Fourth of July. The excerpt below is taken from that speech. Annotate the passage. Use your own symbols to indicate (as applicable):

- The Main Idea
- Key words or ideas
- Important words or phrases
- Unfamiliar words
- Things you don't understand
- Things that surprise you
- Things you can connect with
- Things you know you need to remember

"Would you have me argue that man is entitled to liberty? That he is the rightful owner of his own body? You have already declared it. Must I argue the wrongfulness of slavery? Is that a question for republicans? Is it to be settled by the rules of logic and argumentation, as a matter beset with great difficulty, involving a doubtful application of the principle of justice, hard to understand? How should I look today in the presence of Americans, dividing and subdividing a discourse, to show that men have a natural right to freedom, speaking of it relatively and positively, negatively and affirmatively? To do so would be to make myself ridiculous, and to offer an insult to your understanding. There is not a man beneath the canopy of heaven who does not know that slavery is wrong for him."

From Reading-Writing Research to Practice Sophie Briquet-Duhazé, Catherine Turcotte, 2019-04-10 Teachers regularly seek to update their practice with newly developed tools from the realm of research with the aim of applying them directly in the classroom, particularly for teaching reading and writing. Thus, teachers' continuing education is dependent on the effective dissemination and appropriation of research results. This book explores this problem from multiple angles, presenting research projects from France and Quebec, Canada. Using a variety of methods, including creating teaching materials and engaging classroom teachers in the research process, the authors demonstrate the importance of ownership and dissemination of research results in schools. Although this necessity sometimes complicates the work of researchers, it is vital to develop and maintain the relationship between reading-writing research and its practical applications.

Academic Practice Saranne Weller, 2015-10-31 Lecturers, if you would like to order an e-Inspection copy, go here to order. Taking a broad contemporary view of higher education, this book explores key topics that all academics will need to engage with in order to survive and flourish in today's increasingly complex higher education environment. Key topics include connecting research and teaching in practice, promoting critical approaches to the curriculum, teaching for employability, and understanding graduate identity, responding to the internationalisation agenda, engaging with the demands of the digital university, enacting interdisciplinary approaches to teaching and scholarship, enabling inclusive approaches to student engagement, and student voice. Policy and practice debates informing these different areas are explored alongside practical guidance on how to implement and integrate key priorities into the different dimensions of their professional practice. This is essential reading for higher education faculty undertaking professional development courses such as the PG Certificate in Academic Practice (PGCAP), the PG Certificate in Teaching and Learning in Higher Education (PGCTLHE), PGHE and related courses and also for early career academics wishing to deepen their understanding of contemporary higher education

Glossing Practice Franck Cinato, Aimée Lahaussais, John B. Whitman, 2023-01-09 This volume is the first book to focus specifically on the topic of comparative glossing It brings together new research on glossing practices from traditions in both the West and East Asia with a focus on Japan It also touches on the relation between glossing in the medieval manuscript tradition and the modern linguistic use of the gloss Its purpose is to present a sample of the most recent studies on glossing as it is practiced across very different parts of the world highlighting the many shared features found across space and time Glosses take many forms and serve numerous functions according to when and where they are produced They constitute a cross cultural phenomenon anchored in language and are the manifestation of hermeneutic processes involved in the transfer of knowledge from one linguistic area to another. Glosses are an integral part of all the stages of this transfer which is characterized by the necessity to decode and explain the message encompassing basic grammatical commentary and wider exegetical discussions.
