1. b
2. c
3. c

Short Answer:

1. Why would it be advantageous for U.S. GAAP and International GAAP to be the same?
1. Relevant and reliable financial information is a necessity for viable capital markets. Unfortunately, financial statements from companies outside the United States are often prepared using different principles than U.S. GAAP. As a result, international companies have to develop financial information in different ways. Beyond the additional costs these companies incur, users of financial statements are often forced to understand at least two sets of GAAP. It is not surprising that there is a growing demand for one set of high-quality international standards.
2. What is the difference between principle-based and rules-based accounting rules? Is IFRS more principle-based than U.S. GAAP? Explain.
2. Principle-based rules are considered to be based on accounting principles to result in financial statements that are presented. Rules-based standards are generally quite detailed, and in many instances follow a "checklist" mentality that some contend may shield auditors and companies from legal liability. Because IFRS tends to be simpler and less stringent in its accounting and disclosure requirements, it is generally considered more principle-based than U.S. GAAP.
