There are three steps to doing well on the writing portion of the STAAR Test.

1. A. Attention getter: You need a really good hook to draw the attention of the reader.
2. T.S.P. Thesis/Position statement: There needs to be a clear T.S.P.S. that responds to the prompt.
3. E. Example(s): For the body, you need one or two well developed examples that support and explain your T.S.P.S. statement. (Five sentences or more per example)

For each prompt below, think of a creative/unique attention getter that relates to its topic. It can be anything at all as long as it relates to the topic. Then come up with a clear thesis/position statement using a cause and effect strategy. Finally, write one or two examples that could be used to support and explain your T.S.P.S. if you were to get it for your prompt on the real test. The examples can be personal, hypothetical, current event, or historical. The first one is done for you.
