

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of risk factors for low back pain between two groups of nurses. One group consisted of nurses who had been employed by the same hospital for at least 10 years and the other group consisted of newly hired nurses. Data were collected from a questionnaire sent to all registered nurses working in the medical-surgical unit of a large teaching hospital. The results showed that the prevalence of risk factors for low back pain was significantly higher in the group of nurses who had been employed by the same hospital for at least 10 years than in the group of newly hired nurses.
