Colonial Era:

Signers of the Declaration of Independence

At the beginning of July, the Second Continental Congress accepted the Plan drafted by Richard Henry Lee to end all connections between themselves and Britain. Fifty-six delegates met to sign the Declaration of Independence. Signing was a dangerous act because the British viewed the Declaration of Independence as an act of treason (crime against your country), punishable by death.

John Hancock

John Hancock, a Boston merchant, was the President of the Continental Congress. Hancock made his signature large so that King George III could read it without his glasses. Hancock's name became a symbol of freedom to the colonies.

Benjamin Rush

Benjamin Rush was a physician known as the "Father of American Medicine." He was a pioneer in the fields of physiology and psychology. As an educator, he established a national public schooling to train public workers (supported or elected government officials). Also, Rush supported the education of women. As a humanitarian, he established and financed the oldest African American Church in America. Later, he was named the U.S. Ambassador to England.

Charles Carroll of Carrollton

From Maryland, Charles Carroll was an early supporter of independence and armed resistance against the British. As one of the wealthiest men in the nation, Carroll used his own money to help finance the Revolution. As a member of the Catholic minority in America, Carroll fought against the lack of political rights given to American Catholics and the acceptance of the Roman Catholic religion in America.

John Witherspoon

A Presbyterian minister, John Witherspoon, was an active member of the Continental Congress serving as President at its conclusion. After hearing a fellow colonist say that America was not ready for independence, Witherspoon replied, "It was not only ripe for independence, but its desire of getting far the west of it." Witherspoon was the President of the College of New Jersey, later known as Princeton University, a leading institution of learning.

The U.S. Constitution, 1787

The Declaration of Independence set up the goal to create a system of government, based on the will of the people that would promote liberty, equality, and individual rights. The U.S. Constitution turned that goal into a concrete system of government with fundamental laws. The final constitution, the Articles of Confederation, was a failure because it created a weak national government. In 1787, American leaders decided that a stronger national government was needed. The Constitutional Convention met in Philadelphia to create (change) the Articles of Confederation. They quickly decided to write an entirely new constitution. The U.S. Constitution established the basic structure of our national (federal) government, making it strong enough to protect the nation's interests and promote its general welfare. In the USA, the leaders of the Constitution gave the national government many important powers and made federal laws superior over state laws. However, the real power rested with the people, who elect their own representatives.

The new Constitution created an elected President (Executive Branch), a two-house Congress (Legislative Branch), and a Supreme Court (Judicial Branch).

Important Principles of the U.S. Constitution

It means that this new national government was not, yet among, the Constitution adopted a number of important principles.

1. Republicanism: A republican form of government is a democratic government of representatives elected by the people.
2. Popular Sovereignty: The people hold supreme power, so the powers of the government come from the consent of the people.
3. Federalism: We are a federal republic where the powers of government are divided between the national government and state governments. Some shared (and others such as education and policing laws defining local crimes).
4. Limited Government: The President of the U.S. and other members of the government are limited by the supreme law of the land, known as the U.S. Constitution. Although the Constitution grants powers to state and national governments, the Constitution also limits the powers desired to both the federal and state governments. The powers of government are limited by the Constitution.
5. Separation of Powers: The power of the federal government is divided among three separate branches: Executive (the President), Legislative (Congress), and Judicial (Supreme Court).
6. Checks and Balances: To prevent any one branch from becoming too powerful, the Constitution gave each branch ways to stop (check) the actions of the other branches. One purpose of the Supreme Court is to make sure the other branches follow and respect the Constitution.
7. Amendments: The Constitution can be amended (changed), allowing it to adjust to changing times and situations. The Bill of Rights are the first ten amendments of the U.S. Constitution, which guarantee individual rights.

John Jay and the Federalist Papers

As a member of the Continental Congress, John Jay supported independence but was afraid and unable to sign the Declaration of Independence. Jay had a big part in organizing the peace treaty that ended the Revolutionary War and gave our country independence from Britain. Before the U.S. Constitution could be put into effect, it had to be ratified (approved) by the states. The gains support for the ratification
