

Creative Nonfiction

An Exploration of Contemporary American Literature

"We tell ourselves stories in order to live." -- Joan Didion

Writers write, but what do they write these days? Books? Stories? Poems? or Blogs? Fiction? Nonfiction? Both? Contemporary writers sometimes blur the line between fiction and reality and combine traditional forms for a fresh way of reflecting on life.

Writers of creative nonfiction use standard elements of fiction to write about real life events. The subgenres in creative nonfiction include personal essay, memoir, travel/place essays, literary journalism (expanding on topics in news), and more.

Since ninth grade, you have probably read more creative nonfiction than you realize. Remember reading In Cold Blood by Truman Capote in 10th grade? In Unit Six, you read excerpts from Hersey's A Noiseless Flash, Michael Herr's Dispatches, and O'Brien's The Things They Carried. Each reads as if it is fiction, with vivid setting, character details, imagery and figurative language. The authors arrange details to keep their readers' attention, like a gripping plot would do. But the source of all of these works is real life.

In addition to those works listed above, we will read others as models of essays that you can write. Your fourth quarter essay will be creative nonfiction. Because you are not expected to conduct extensive research for your essay, your choices for type of essay are limited to memoir (which may include interviewing family or friends), personal essay (which may require a bit of fact checking), and travel/place essay (which also might require a bit of minor research). See more on each type below.

2. Complete an analysis form for any two essays of your choosing. See the list below.
3. Write a creative nonfiction essay and publish it in a class anthology. Your essay should be no shorter than 500 words. It should employ typical elements of fiction: setting, character, imagery, figurative language, theme, etc. to tell a true story or relate a true event.
