European Social Work After 1989 Walter Lorenz, Zuzana

Havrdová, Oldřich Matoušek, 2020-09-01 This book presents a unique analysis of the learning derived from East West contacts in social work and reflects on the discipline's inalienable transnational dimensions of high actuality in the face of the re-emergence of nationalisms. The fundamental transformations in Europe subsequent to the revolutions of 1989 had a profound impact on social work in terms of raising sharply the profession's relationship with politics. The exchanges between western schools of social work and the emergent academic partner institutions in former Communist countries formed a valuable testing ground for the essential principles and competences of social work in terms of their universal scientific basis on the one hand and their regard for cultural and national values and contexts on the other. The chapters in this contributed volume focus on lessons derived from fundamental social and political transformations highlighted by East West encounters and intranational divisions and thereby have important messages for mastering impending transformations in the light of the global COVID 19 health crisis. They demonstrate how cultural and social divisions can be addressed constructively with direct implications for training and practice in dramatically changing contexts. Lithuanian social work's claim to professional autonomy vs authoritarianism in popular and political culture. Social work between civil society and the state: lessons for and from Hungary in a European context. When Europe's East West North and South meet: learning from cross-country collaboration in creating an international social work master programme. Nordic Baltic cooperation in social work researcher education. A Finnish perspective on the impact on scientific, historical and linguistic similarities and differences. Intranational similarities and differences in social work and their significance for developing European dimensions of research and education. Social work, political conflict and European society: reflections from Northern Ireland. European Social Work After 1989: East West Exchanges Between Universal Principles and Cultural Sensitivity is an invaluable resource for social work educators, social work practitioners confronted with national and international divisions, students of social work of social administration and policy and any policy researcher with a comparative focus.

The Global Lives of German Migrants

Marcel Erlinghagen, Andreas Ette, Norbert F. Schneider, Nils Witte, 2021-04-29 Based on the German case, this open access book highlights the increasing flows of migration and the internationalisation of individual life courses. It analyses the experiences of migration across four central domains: employment and income, partners and families, health and wellbeing as well as friends and social participation, which potentially have far-reaching consequences for social inequalities and life chances. The book showcases results from an innovative probability sample that is representative of German emigrants who recently moved abroad and remigrants who recently returned from abroad and compares their international experiences with the sedentary population in Germany. Stays abroad, whether temporary or permanent, have become the new normal for increasing numbers of people from highly developed welfare states. Unnoticed from mainstream migration studies, these countries are today not only major immigration countries but also important sources of international mobility. By providing an
