Case Study 1 Heart Failure

Difficulty: Beginner

Setting: Emergency department, hospital

Topic: Heart failure (HF), cardiovascular volume overload, quality of life

Scenario

M.G., a "frequent flyer" is admitted to the emergency department (ED) with a diagnosis of heart failure (HF). She was discharged from the hospital 10 days ago and comes in today stating, "I just had to come to the hospital today because I can't catch my breath and my legs are so big as last month." After further questioning, you learn she is strictly following the fluid and salt restriction ordered during her last hospital admission. She reports gaining 1 to 2 pounds every day since her discharge.

- What error in teaching most likely occurred when M.G. was discharged? Is breakdown of successful communication occurred regarding when to gain? It is imperative that patients understand when to call their provider from the outpatient experience. HF (congestive heart failure) is considered a standard of care and is monitored by the local community which provides care to hospitalized patients. The goal of the discharge treatment plan is to facilitate successful patient self-management, minimize symptoms, and prevent readmission.

CASE STUDY PROGRESS

During the admission interview, the nurse makes a list of the medications M.G. took at home:

II. Chart View

Nursing Assessment: Medications Taken at Home

Dilatapril (Vasotec) 5 mg PO bid
 Furosemide (Lasix) 40 mg PO every morning
 Potassium chloride 40 mg/day PO
 Potassium chloride 20 mg/day PO

- Which of these medications may have contributed to M.G.'s heart failure? Furosemide, such as furosemide, may increase the risk of heart failure in patients with symptoms of heart failure. They commonly cause weight gain which are the result of both water retention and increased diuresis.

PART 1 MEDICAL-SURGICAL CASES

- How do angiotensin-converting enzyme (ACE) inhibitors, such as enalapril (Vasotec), work to reduce heart failure? (Select all that apply.) ACE inhibitors
 - prevent the conversion of angiotensin I to angiotensin II.
 - cause systemic vasodilation.
 - promote the excretion of sodium and water in the renal tubules.
 - reduce preload and afterload.
 - increase cardiac contractility.

ACE inhibitors prevent the conversion of angiotensin I to angiotensin II, a potent vasoconstrictor. This results in systemic vasodilation, thereby reducing preload (reducing the volume of blood entering the left ventricle) and afterload (reducing the resistance to the left ventricular contraction) in patients with HF. ACE inhibitors do not promote the excretion of sodium and water, and they do not cause increased cardiac contractility or block the sympathetic nervous system in the heart.

CASE STUDY PROGRESS

After reviewing M.G.'s medications, the physician writes these medication orders:

II. Chart View

Medication Orders

Dilatapril (Vasotec) 5 mg PO bid
 Furosemide (Lasix) 40 mg PO every morning
 Spironolactone (Aldactone) 25 mg PO every morning
 Furosemide (Lasix) 40 mg PO each (P) noon, then 40 mg/day P
 Potassium chloride (B-Dur) 20 mg/day PO

- What is the rationale for changing the route of the furosemide (Lasix)? M.G. is fluid overloaded and needs to decrease fluid volume in a short period. IV administration is delivered directly into the vascular system, where it can start to work immediately. In HF, blood flow to the entire gastrointestinal (GI) system is compromised; therefore, the absorption of orally ingested medications may be variable and take longer to work.
- The physician prescribes furosemide (Lasix) 40 mg IV bid. Identify three parameters you would use to monitor the effectiveness of this medication.
 - Increased urine output
 - Daily weight, looking for weight loss
 - Intake and output (I&O)
 - Decreased dependent edema
 - The increased thickness of heavily branched vessels in the bases of the lungs, the increased work of breathing, and increased $\text{P}_{\text{a}}\text{O}_2$ demands
 - Decreased jugular venous distention (JVD)
- What laboratory tests should be ordered for M.G., related to the order for furosemide (Lasix)? (Select all that apply.)
 - Magnesium level
 - Sodium level
