Figure 1

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks for physical and psychological health. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, the 10-minute step test, and the 12-minute step test. The walking program also significantly improved the subjects' psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory. The walking program was a safe and effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
