Sutherland, 1972 Hemingway and Callaghan first became personally acquainted when both worked as reporters for the Toronto Star in the early 1920s. Later in Paris during that memorable summer of 1929 they ran into each other again and experienced a fast paced period of verbal gymnastics, one upmanship and boxing rounds. Fraser Sutherland has written a carefully researched perspective and highly readable comparative study of two great authors Ernest Hemingway and Morley Callaghan. He begins with a fascinating discussion of the lives of these two men, each so different from the other. Callaghan was born into a Roman Catholic family in Toronto, spent his summers on Georgian Bay, studied Law at the University of Toronto and went on to become a professional, highly respected and established Canadian writer. Hemingway's life was one of action in the Italian Campaign of World War I; he received 227 wounds from a mortar, he was involved in two plane crashes, served in the Spanish Civil War and like his father committed suicide. Throughout this lifetime of frenetic and often painful activity, Hemingway wrote his novels and short stories, achieving international acclaim. In discussing the literary output of the two men, Fraser Sutherland's extensive knowledge of his subject and easy style show up to best advantage. He is of the opinion that the best of Callaghan's writing consists of two superb parable novels such as My Beloved and More Joy in Heaven, a dozen fine short stories and an excellent memoir That Summer in Paris. Hemingway he praises for having restored order and clarity to our use of the English Language for having written one of the best novels of our time The Sun Also Rises, the best Romance A Farewell to Arms and perhaps a dozen of the best short stories in existence. Throughout their work Sutherland shows how Callaghan and Hemingway share common symbols: the smashed man, the lake, the river, the victimized woman. And they share a common style: a depiction in simple language of the barebones of the world in which we live.

A Promise Not Kept Jim Turner, 2008. Meet Harry Adkins, a self-declared cockeyed optimist. Adkins believes he can beat any odds. Overweight, heavy drinking, a philandering international businessman in his forties with a long suffering wife, when the story opens he might have come to the end of that road of optimism. Friend and physician Dr Alex Quick Campbell offers an escape route. He signs up for the Healthy Hearts Live Longer study. Following a year of training and monitoring, H2 L2 predicts the precise day of the patient's death. A threat lurks in the background. Convicted murderer Johnnie Allegro has vowed to avenge his death penalty sentence by going after Adkins, the jury foreman. On the day, a slimmer and healthier Adkins receives the predicted date of his death. Adkins decides to finish cleaning up his life. He sends a fax to Naomi, his Japanese business partner; their long standing affair is over. Flash forward ten years. Today is the predicted day of Adkins' death. He has misremembered the day by one, however, and wakes up feeling victorious, his cockeyed optimism vindicated. He's alive. Healthy. Rich. Life is good. But Allegro has escaped from jail. There's a surprise in store. It's well worth the anticipation. There's a full meal of life in this witty novel. In the end, we root for cockeyed optimism to prevail. We want to wish Adkins a long and happy life.
