The Associated Press Guide To Punctuation:

The Associated Press Guide To Punctuation Rene J. Cappon, 2007-03-20 In the no nonsense authoritative tradition of the best selling AP Stylebook the top editors at the AP have written the definitive guide to punctuation More people write for the Associated Press than for any other news service and more writers take their style and word usage cues from this world famous institution than from any other journalism source From the when and how of the ampersand to the rules for dashes slashes and brackets from the correct moment for the overused exclamation point to the rules of engagement for the semicolon The AP Guide to Punctuation is an invaluable and easy to use guide to the most important aspect of clear and persuasive writing

The Associated Press Guide to Punctuation René Jacques Cappon, 2003 Blogger or Journalist? Evaluating What Is the Press in the Digital Age Tracy Brown, 2012-12-15 From the Introduction The days of relying on the newspaper delivery boy to deliver information to households are long over The Internet and mobile phone technologies have changed how information is gathered and delivered in ways that can't be overstated They have allowed people worldwide to gather share and access news as it's happening The Internet and sites such as Facebook and YouTube have made it possible for anyone to reach a broad global audience and for anyone with a computer to be a news provider There is an enormous amount of content available online on just about any topic Viewers and readers must weed through this information to find sources that they trust and that they can rely on in the same way that people read their daily paper or watch their favorite television news broadcast The difference is the people who write for newspapers or television news are journalists people whose job it is to research and deliver news to the public When you go online you find content from lots of different people many of whom are not actual journalists but interested citizens who want to share information with the public much like journalists do These non journalists include writers of blogs and producers of independent news stories people who are not working for official media outlets like established news channels or publications Here we will look at the differences between journalists and this new breed of news providers We will discuss what professional standards journalists must follow that bloggers are not bound to as well as what laws protect journalists but do not offer the same protection for non journalists Also discussed will be the roles different types of news providers serve in society and how our definition of journalism is changing The purpose is to help consumers of online news better understand where the news they read is coming from what news they can trust how to tell the difference between fact and opinion and how to put together everything they read to form their own ideas about current events and then perhaps even to share their ideas in their own online publications or blogs

The Architects Guide to Writing Bill Schmalz, The Images Publishing Group, 2014 There are a lot of good books available to help people write better They include dictionaries usage guides and various types of writers manuals and professional writers ought to have many of those books on their bookshelves But most architects and other design and construction professionals are not professional writers Instead they are people who spend a large part of their professional lives writing

That's a big difference and that's where this book will help. The Architect's Guide to Writing has been written not by an English major but by Bill Schmalz, an architect who knows the kinds of documents his fellow professionals routinely have to write and understands the kinds of technical mistakes they often make in their writing. This book is designed to meet the specific needs of design and construction professionals. It's not going to waste their time with the things that most educated professionals know but it will help them with the things they don't know or are unsure of. It's not a Chicago Manual sized encyclopaedic reference that includes everything any writer would ever need to know because architects don't need to know everything. But what they do need to know and what they use every day in their professional lives has been assembled in this book.

The Micro-historian's Guide to Research, Evidence, & Conclusions Reginald W. Bacon, 2019-09-18

The Micro Historian's Guide to Research Evidence Conclusions imparts useful guidance to motivated historians, genealogists, special interest researchers, and local history enthusiasts. As long buried sources become available via the internet, more regular folks without a Ph.D. in history are joining the fun of information gathering and shining new light on under explored history, yet often with no foundation of method. The author answers the call with this volume, paying forward the guidance received from long ago mentors as well as from present day historians and archivists. Topics include research planning, execution, evaluation of evidence, formulation of conclusions, and the crafting of a summary narrative. Each topic is enriched by practical examples from the author's experience. The aim is to help the new practitioner build a foundation of research skills that leads to evidence based conclusions. The author's perspective of experience as a disciplined researcher but also with roots as a no nonsense old school newspaper reporter occasionally prompts a mild tease of the buttoned down genealogy proof standard or conversely a deflating poke at flabby interpretation and moribund academic writing wherever it may fester. The Micro Historian's Guide to Research Evidence Conclusions draws theory from dozens of history, genealogy, historiography, and research giants through the ages. The book also pays tribute to that long ago cigar chomping newspaper editor who admonished a young reporter: "Yer mother sez she loves ya. You still gotta check it out."

Journalism Jo A. Cates, 2004-05-30

Journalism: A Guide to the Reference Literature is a critically annotated bibliographic guide to print and electronic sources in print and broadcast journalism. The first edition was published in 1990, the second in 1997. It has been described as one of the critical reference sources in journalism today and it is a key bibliographic guide to the literature. Choice magazine called it a benchmark publication for which there are no comparable sources. The format is similar to the second edition. What makes this edition significantly different is the separation of Commercial Databases and Internet Resources. Commercial Databases includes standard fee based resources. The new chapter on Internet sources features Web based resources not included in the commercial databases chapter as well as portals, other online files, listservs, newsgroups, and Web logs/blogs. All chapters have been revised and there are significant revisions in Directories, Yearbooks, and Collections, Miscellaneous Sources, Core Periodicals, Societies and Associations, and Research Centers and Archives. The second edition has 789 entries. The third
