Smith,1959 Computer Work Stations Herman Holtz,1985 Automation of America's Offices, 1985-2000 Congress of the U.S., Washington, DC. Office of Technology Assessment,1985 This study assesses the consequences of the continuing and rapid introduction of information and telecommunications technologies in offices The report of the study contains 12 chapters After a brief look at the context of office automation from the perspective of history the first chapter highlights some expectations about the technologies and their development over the next 15 years It also introduces a framework that guides the assessment summarizes the findings and identifies policy issues for the next decade Chapters 2 through 6 discuss the possible effects of office automation in more detail They deal with potential effects on employment levels the kind of training and education needed for office work changes in work content jobs occupations and organizations the quality of work life the office environment and labor management relations and the security and confidentiality of information Chapters 7 and 8 consider two alternatives to conventional offices made feasible by office automation home based work and performance of data entry operations in countries with lower paid workers Chapter 9 and 10 look at office automation in the public sector while Chapter 11 deals with office automation and small businesses The final chapter considers the implications of office automation for two groups working women and minorities Appendix A describes office automation technology as it is now and as it is likely to develop between 1985 and 2000 while Appendix B summarizes case studies of the automation of several offices KC Tutorial Office Automation Systems Harvey A. Freeman,Kenneth J. Thurber,1986 Office Automation Charles M. Ray,Janet J. Palmer,1987 Office Automation Don Tapscott,2013-11-21 Every pioneer takes large risks hoping that the new frontier he seeks will provide the benefits of independence and good fortune Don Tapscott is such a pioneer in the area of office automation He has been a true pioneer having entered the field in its early days and taken the risk of working not in technol ogy which was fashionable but in the field of the problems of organizations which was less fashionable but in many ways more important The utilization of computers for data processing accounting inventory and other bread and butter applications is now well entrenched in our society and culture The process of designing such systems tends to focus on the needs of the company and the constraints of the equipment leading to efficient systems with little tolerance for the variety of people who must use or interface with them Within the office automation area these methods do not work nearly as well The frequency and amount of human interaction in the office environment and the wide variety of situations and reactions there in demands a different design methodology Office Automation D. Tsichritzis,1985-05-01 Office Automation D. Tsichritzis,2012-12-06 The term Office Automation implies much and means little The word Office is usually reserved for units in an organization that have a rather general function They are supposed to support different activities but it is notoriously difficult to determine what an office is supposed to do Automation in this loose context may mean many different things At one extreme it is nothing more than giving people better tools than typewriters and telephones with which to do their work more efficiently and effectively At the opposite extreme it implies the replacement of people by machines which perform office procedures automatically In this book we will take the approach that Office Automation is much more than just better tools but falls significantly short of replacing every person in an office It may reduce the need for clerks it may take over some secretarial functions and it may lessen the dependence of principals on support personnel Office Automation will change the office environment It will eliminate the more mundane and well understood functions and will highlight the decision oriented activities in an office The goal of this book is to provide some understanding of office activities and to evaluate the potential of Office Information Systems for office procedure automation To achieve this goal we need to explore concepts elaborate on techniques and outline tools
