Applied Food Protein Chemistry Zeynep Ustunol, 2014-12-19. Food proteins are of great interest not only because of their nutritional importance and their functionality in foods but also for their detrimental effects. Although proteins from milk, meats, including fish, and poultry, eggs, cereals, legumes, and oilseeds have been the traditional sources of protein in the human diet, potentially any proteins from a biological source could serve as a food protein. processes They are also responsible for food texture color and flavor Today food proteins are extracted modified and incorporated into processed foods to impart specific functional properties They can also have adverse effects in the diet proteins such as walnuts pecans almonds and cashews soybean wheat milk egg crustacean and fish proteins can be powerful allergens for some people Applied Food Protein Chemistry is an applied reference which reviews the properties of food proteins and provides in depth information on important plant and animal proteins consumed around the world The book is grouped into three sections 1 overview of food proteins 2 plant proteins and 3 animal proteins Each chapter discusses world production distribution utilization physicochemical properties and the functional properties of each protein as well as its food applications The authors for each of the chapters are carefully selected experts in the field This book will be a valuable reference tool for those who work on food proteins It will also be an important text on applied food protein chemistry for upper level students and graduate students of food science programs
