Bringing the dead back to life

Día de los Muertos, or Day of the Dead, is a holiday celebrated predominantly in Mexico, but it can be found throughout Latin America. While the holiday is associated with death, it is not portrayed as a morbid or depressing time but rather a period full of life, happiness, color, food, family, and fun – a reflection of a culture that perceives death as an inescapable part of life.

Many aspects of the celebrations of Día de los Muertos are intended to mock Death. Darkly humorous euphemisms are used for death: La calaca (the skeleton), la pelona ("baldy"), la flaca ("skinny"), and la huesada ("bony"). In one traditional song, the singer boldly asserts, "La muerte es flaca y no puede conmigo!" ("Death is skinny/weak and she can't carry me.") There is excitement everywhere, and in many areas, outdoor markets are displayed in which they sell symbolic goods such as special breads, flowers, pottery, baskets, candles, paper puppets, candy skulls, etc.

The main symbols of this holiday are skeletons, which are displayed throughout the celebrating cities. Scenes of skeletons hugging, marching, dancing, and laughing are seen in window displays on the streets. Marigolds also hold significance for the Day of the Dead festivities and are known as the "flower of the dead." Their scent is believed to attract and draw back the souls of those who have passed away.

Celebrations in Homes and Cemeteries

The festivities of Día de los Muertos take place between Oct. 31st and Nov. 2nd, a time called Todos Santos. In the home, gifts of food and drink are prepared for the dead, and ofrendas (offerings) are often set up on an altar displaying portraits, personal goods, clothing, favorite foods, and possessions of the deceased family member.

Traditionally, family members visit the gravesites of their loved ones on November 2nd. They decorate graves with flowers, enjoy the favorite foods of the deceased in graveyard picnics, and socially interact with others at the cemetery. This is an important social ritual that the Latino people see as "a way of recognizing the cycle of life and death that is human existence." In certain areas, an all-night candlelight vigil takes place by the graves of the family members.

The whole occasion is festive, and everyone talks of the dead as if they were still alive. During this time, people "remember, re-live, and enjoy."

Regional and National Variations

Day of the Dead is celebrated in Mexico, Ecuador, Guatemala, and other areas in Central and South America populated with the Latino ethnic background. The Day of the Dead is also celebrated in areas of the United States, such as California, Texas, and many others, in which the Mexican/American heritage exists.

The dates of the Day of the Dead celebration correspond with the Catholic celebrations of All Saints Day and All Souls Day. This correlation is a result of the Catholic Church's conscious efforts to "find similarities between the indigenous and Christian beliefs."

Today the celebration takes place at about the same time ancient corn festivals were celebrated, when food from a plentiful harvest was shared with the deceased.
