

Co-Education

"Every man has three characters that he exhibits: that which he has and that which he thinks he has."
(Alphonse Karr)

Mixed education is teaching boys and girls under the same roof; it also means giving a kind of education to both sexes. First of all, it was introduced in Switzerland. The developed countries of Europe adopted it in the beginning. The Muslim countries did not like this system. But some westernized institutions took over with the passage of time. Now it has become very popular. Plato, the great philosopher, gave the idea: "Joint education is essential for the development of the personality." According to him, education is the only way to make girls and boys useful to society. That's why the best adopted this system a long time ago and started to reap the benefits.

Co-education is a controversial topic. People with radical ideas are in favor of it. Their advocacy is primarily based on economic considerations. They say it is very difficult to keep separate schools and colleges for boys and girls. The government cannot afford to fund two separate institutions in small towns and cities.

Moreover, education is essential to modern civilization. today women are expected to work side by side with men. They are seen in offices, factories, mills, farms everywhere. They compete with men in every area of life. Education should also be introduced to them under the same roof and system so that
