Short Ride To Hell A Brantley Colton Mystery:

Short Ride to Hell Rodd Clark, 2015-01-25 For Brantley Colton his crusade was over There was nothing in the abyss left for him Whatever he had once believed in had become a lie There was no light at the end of the tunnel just a long highway ahead a dark road without signposts to direct him Where would he go from here The finality in his soul belied some joy in the closing moments It was over he could die now but he couldn't die happy It had only been a few hours since he had put the Winter Glade Motel in his rear view but it seemed longer Colton drove the desolate highway but felt tired and needed sleep The air conditioning was on high to fend off the humid Florida evening The air against his face was the only thing preventing him from drifting into dangerous sleep even so he contemplated the series of events that had him traveling down 1 75 in the middle of the night with the blood stains of the murdered man still present on his shirt He had used an alias to register at the motel paid in cash but feared something had been left behind which could tie him to the murder He needed time to finish the job at hand and his sloppy second guessing had placed him in peril Colton had never been one for prayer but felt like it was a good time to drop to his knees to confess his crime and ask for forgiveness Not that it would have done any good for him

Short Ride to Hell Rodd Clark, 2014-05-04 Brantley Colton is in his mid thirties single bisexual with a clear gay preference and he suffers from terminal brain cancer He is drawn into the web of a serial killer's world Along the way he encounters several sexual adventures with men but considers his mission unyielding He knows that he's racing against time and against odds to reach the serial killer who has killed someone he loved before he is taken by his diagnosis or captured by the authorities As he travels across several states he becomes an amateur sleuth and profiler He learns what lengths he will succumb to in his overwhelming desire to enact revenge against a serial killer and stop a murder spree Being pursued by FBI profiler John Reston and Colton's mission is upended with the killing of an unknown accomplice Brantley discovers what it means to lose oneself when driven to become as methodic and evil as the killer he tracks Once a good man he must force an evolution into a darker soul or risk losing his new found purpose Rubble and the Wreckage Rodd Clark, 2015-01-31 Back to Catalogue

Gabriel Church knows you can't take a life without first understanding just how feeble life is how tentative and weak it stands alone If you desire murder you hold a life in your hand Whether you release it to grant life or grip tighter to end it it is at your command and discretion Gabriel is a serial killer with a story he wants told Christian Maxwell studied abnormal psychology in college but chose instead to focus on a career in writing His background comes in handy when he thinks of writing about a serial killer He can't think of anyone more qualified to write the story of Gabriel Lee Church and do so in the murderer's own words It's been done before but never with a killer who has yet to be captured or convicted There was never anything more than a gentleman's understanding between the two men that Christian would record Gabriel's life story The killer did not ask for his complicity in any crimes nor did he ever ask for his silence Christian's interest in the man though is fast becoming something more than academic When the writer and his subject become unexpected friends and then lovers the question remains What is Gabriel's endgame and why does he want his story told Torn and Frayed (Gabriel Church Tales, #2) Rodd Clark, 2016-02-09

Conscience isn't something all people are born with Gabriel Church is a portrait in contrast It would be easy to get lost in his pale blue eyes ache with the need to feel the strength of his masculine frame He appears to be nothing but animal and instinct The only people who know the full depth of that truth are dead murdered or two thousand miles away Gabe is a serial killer For the first time in his life he has more on his mind than his own survival This time he is running from Seattle to protect the only person he thinks innocent in his laundry list of crime and murder Christian Maxwell his biographer and unexpected lover Drawn to a place he never thought to return Gabe finds new and different realities Realities that insist he let go of his tragic past those incredible perceptions of God and his own divinity He must open his eyes to what the love of a good man can do to heal a broken soul
