through which the translator as advocate claims a significant position in intercultural dialogue. Featuring seven interrelated chapters, the book covers themes of judgement spaces for translation, classroom practice, collaboration, intercultural position, textuality, and voice. Each chapter explores the specific demands of different types of translation work, the specific role of each stage of the process, and what advocacy means at each of these stages, for example, choosing what is translated, mediating between author and receiving culture, pitching to publishers, social interactions framing the translation for different audiences, teaching, creating new canons, gatekeepers, and prizes, dissemination, marketing, and reception. This book repositions the role of the translator/academic as an activist who uses their knowledge and understanding to bring agency to the complex processes of understanding across time and space. Moving critically through the different stages that the translator/academic occupies, using the spaces for research, performance, and classroom teaching as springboards for active engagement with the key preoccupations of our times, this book will highlight translation as advocacy for students, educators, audiences for translation, and the translation industry. Like all the volumes in the Language Acts and Worldmaking series, the overall aim is two-fold: to challenge widely held views about language learning as a neutral instrument of globalisation and to innovate and transform language research, teaching, and learning together with Modern Languages as an academic discipline by foregrounding its unique form of cognition and critical engagement. Specific aims are to propose new ways of bridging the gaps between those who teach and research languages and those who learn and use them in everyday contexts; from the professional to the personal, put research into the hands of wider audiences; share a philosophy, policy, and practice of language teaching and learning which turns research into action; provide the research experience and data to enable informed debates on current issues and attitudes in language learning, teaching, and research; share knowledge across and within all levels and experiences of language learning and teaching; showcase exciting new work that derives from different types of community activity and is of practical relevance to its audiences; disseminate new research in languages that engages with diverse communities of language practitioners.
