On the outside, Asha seems to have it all. She is a beautiful, intelligent, and successful businesswoman who has paved her own way at a young age without her father's money. However, on a daily basis, she struggles with the murder of her mother that she witnessed at the tender age of 9 years old. All the while, her love life is causing her more grief than happiness. Joc is the protégé of Big E, the biggest drug dealer ever known to Chicago, and the head of Terror Squad. His loyalty quickly moves him up the ranks as time progresses, and he is now next in line to the throne that he helped Big E build. He's tired of the chicks filled with hood drama and is looking for someone real just for him. As their paths cross and sparks fly, they are both having doubts about seeing where things can lead. Although they have known each other since they were teenagers, Asha is also the daughter of his mentor, who won't be too thrilled when he hears of their relationship. Joc is drawn to Asha like a moth to a flame, even though she could possibly be the death of him. Not to mention, both of their crazy exes refuse to let go of the love they once shared. Their lives are turned upside down in complete chaos as they fight for each other and to stay alive. Will their love be strong enough, or will they crumble like the walls around them?
