Reporting of Social Science in the National Media Carol Weiss, Eleanor Singer, 1988-08-04 Policy makers as well as the general public are often unaware of social science research until a story about it appears in the national media Even in official Washington a staffer's report on social research may go unnoticed while a report in the Washington Post receives immediate attention This study takes a systematic and revealing look at social science reporting How do journalists hear about social science and why do they select certain stories to cover and not others How do journalistic standards for selection compare with social scientists own judgments of merit How do reporters attempt to ensure accuracy and how freely do they introduce their own interpretations of social science findings How satisfied are social scientists with the selection and accuracy of social science news In Part I Carol H Weiss addresses these questions on the basis of personal interviews with social scientists and the journalists who wrote about their work Part II by Eleanor Singer is based on an analysis of media content itself and compares social science reporting over time between 1970 and 1982 and across media newspapers newsmagazines television These two complementary perspectives combine to produce a thorough realistic assessment of the way social science moves out of the academy and into the world of news

The World of Indicators Richard Rottenburg, Sally E. Merry, Sung-Joon Park, Johanna Mugler, 2015-09-15 The twenty first century has seen a further dramatic increase in the use of quantitative knowledge for governing social life after its explosion in the 1980s Indicators and rankings play an increasing role in the way governmental and non governmental organizations distribute attention make decisions and allocate scarce resources Quantitative knowledge promises to be more objective and straightforward as well as more transparent and open for public debate than qualitative knowledge thus producing more democratic decision making However we know little about the social processes through which this knowledge is constituted nor its effects Understanding how such numeric knowledge is produced and used is increasingly important as proliferating technologies of quantification alter modes of knowing in subtle and often unrecognized ways This book explores the implications of the global multiplication of indicators as a specific technology of numeric knowledge production used in governance The New York Times Practical Guide to Practically Everything, Second Edition Amy D. Federalizing the Muse Donna M. Binkiewicz, 2005-12-15 The National Endowment for the Arts is often accused of embodying a liberal agenda within the American government In Federalizing the Muse Donna Binkiewicz assesses the leadership and goals of Presidents Kennedy through Carter as well as Congress and the National Council on the Arts drawing a picture of the major players who created national arts policy Using presidential papers NEA and National Archives materials and numerous interviews with policy makers Binkiewicz refutes persisting beliefs in arts funding as part of a liberal agenda by arguing that the NEA's origins in the Cold War era colored arts policy with a distinctly moderate undertone Binkiewicz's study of visual arts grants reveals that NEA officials promoted a modernist abstract aesthetic specifically because they believed such a style would best showcase American achievement and freedom This initially led them to neglect many contemporary art forms they feared could be perceived as politically problematic such as pop feminist and ethnic arts The agency was not able to balance its funding across a variety of art forms before facing serious budget cutbacks Binkiewicz's analysis brings important historical perspective to the perennial debates about American art policy and sheds light on provocative political and cultural issues in postwar America
