commodity's value

The Value of Things examines the social and ritual value of commodities in Mesoamerica providing a new and dynamic temporal view of the roles of trade of commodities and elite goods from the prehistoric Maya to the present. Editors Jennifer P. Mathews and Thomas H. Guderjan begin the volume with a review of the theoretical literature related to the value of things. Throughout the volume well known scholars offer chapters that examine the value of specific commodities in a broad time frame from prehistoric colonial and historic times to the present. Using cases from the Maya world on both the local level and the macro regional contributors look at jade agricultural products ancient and contemporary stone tools salt cacao chocolate honey and wax henequen sugarcane and rum land ceramic ancient and contemporary and contemporary tourist handicrafts. Each chapter author looks into what made their specific commodity valuable to ancient historic and contemporary peoples in the Maya region. Often a commodity's worth goes far beyond its financial value indeed in some cases it may not even be viewed as something that can be sold. Other themes include the rise and fall in commodity values based on perceived need rarity or overproduction and change in available raw materials the domestic labor side of commodities including daily life of the laborers and relationships between elites and nonelites in production. Examining explaining and theorizing how people ascribe value to what they trade this scholarly volume provides a rich look at local and regional Maya case studies through centuries of time.
