Portals of Promise Debbie Pushor,the Parent Engagement Collaborative the Parent Engagement Collaborative,2013-10-30 Working with parents is a significant aspect of educators roles yet it is rare to find curriculum in teacher education programs designed to prepare individuals to consider in philosophical theoretical and pedagogical ways who they will be in relationship with parents and why Schools therefore remain hierarchical structures in which parents are marginalized in relation to decisions affecting teaching and learning This book begins with Pushor s conceptualization of a curriculum of parents a curriculum which explores beliefs and assumptions about parents a vision for education in which educators work alongside parents and family members in the learning and care of children and a desire for reform She describes a curriculum of parents in the form of three graduate teacher education courses which she lived out in relationship with students Graduate students then capture their experiences immersed in this curriculum what they each took up how it shaped their knowledge attitudes and practices and how they lived it out as they returned to their classrooms schools and early learning centres This book is a storied account of their intense immersion in a curriculum of parents and the resulting impact living that curriculum has had on who they are in relation to parents and families It is an honest and vulnerable account of their shared and individual journeys They puzzle over the complexities and the successes of their work and the resulting impact This is not a book of best practice but an invitation to other educators to consider as they did what they do and how it could be different

Houser H. Peter Oberlander,Eva M Newbrun,2011-11-01 Catherine Bauer was a leading member of a small group of idealists who called themselves housers because of their commitment to improving housing for low income families In her lifetime she changed dramatically the concept of social housing in the United States and inspired a generation of urban activists to integrate public housing into the emerging welfare state of the mid twentieth century In the first book length biography of Bauer H Peter Oberlander and Eva Newbrun trace her fascinating life and career Their account is lively spanning two continents and dotted with famous names in modern art and architecture In the late 1920s Bauer spent time in Paris where she befriended Fernan L ger Man Ray and Sylvia Beach Back in New York she fell under the spell of American urban critic Lewis Mumford who as a mentor and lover profoundly influenced her life It was at his urging that she became involved with the architects of change in post First World War Europe among them Ernst May Andr Lur at and Walter Gropius Convinced that good social housing could produce good social architecture and moved by the visible ravages of the Depression she became a passionate leader in the fight for housing for the poor She co authored the Housing Act of 1937 and advised five presidents on urban strategies Her book Modern Housing published in 1934 is still regarded as a classic Houser is a rich contribution to the literature on modern housing urban planning and women s studies In the three and a half decades since her death urbanization has radically changed landscapes the world over Housing as a basic human right has slipped from the public agenda and the homeless have become a visible symbol of society s indifference Catherine Bauer s visionary teachings about the symbiotic relationship between good housing and a healthy society are thus as relevant as ever Evangelical Christendom ,1847
