the rising tensions from culture wars as America's divisive politics fight to control the narrative of the disciplines within social studies

Wise Social Studies in an Age of High-Stakes Testing Elizabeth Anne Yeager, O. L. Davis, 2005-08-01 The chapters in this volume illustrate how teachers are bringing creativity, higher order thinking and meaningful learning activities into particular school settings despite pressures of standards and testing. We chose the word wise for the title of this book and we use it frequently to describe the pedagogical practices we have identified. The words powerful and ambitious are used as well. The larger point as Keith C. Barton makes in his chapter is that there is no necessary connection between content standards and high stakes tests on the one hand and low level rote instruction on the other. He reminds us as Thornton (1991) and Wiggins (1987) previously have argued that teachers play a crucial role in mediating educational policy and their intentions and interpretations have at least as much influence on classroom practice as does the content of standards and high stakes tests. Barton also asserts that this makes it all the more crucial to identify the wisdom of practice that enables teachers to engage students in powerful educational experiences.

Misplaced Blame Bonnie Johnson, 2021-10-14 Misplaced Blame: Decades of Failing Schools, Their Children and Their Teachers examines the underlying causes of why schools fail. The book describes the challenges that teachers and their pupils encounter in an environment that is dictated by poverty and harsh unfunded mandates. The volume illustrates that school failure reflects a lack of opportunities, nothing more. The book also discusses the changing role of teachers over the years and teacher led efforts to improve their students' circumstances.

Leadership and Adoption of Instructional Technology in Schools Curtis D. Brandon Sr., 2008-05 This applied dissertation was designed to investigate the characteristics most represented in two school districts: an inner city and a suburban district. These characteristics were related to the innovativeness of the school district and the perception of individual leadership in schools that have passed the performance criteria for state accreditation. Forty schools and 200 principals were randomly selected to participate in the study for a period of 3 to 4 months. The researcher used three instruments to determine whether differences existed between the two districts in regard to performance on the Standards of Learning assessments. He developed a checklist for interview questions on instructional technology strategies that might be implemented by leaders and teachers in the classroom. A Perceived Organizational Innovativeness Scale was used to measure the innovativeness of the school district and an Individual Innovativeness Scale was used to measure the perception of individual leaders concerning the innovativeness of the school district. The findings indicated that organization innovativeness contributed to the innovativeness of individuals such as leaders. Leaders categorized by innovativeness contributed to the overall structure of the organization by means of social networks with predictable human behavior in the organization. The passing of the Standards of Learning assessment and the schools proven performance and accreditation status were clearly related to the behavioral patterns of individual and the social networks implemented by the leadership
