Contemporary Clinical Practice with Asian Immigrants Irene Chung, Tazuko Shibusawa, 2013-07-31 Many first and second generation Asian immigrants experience acculturation challenges to varying extents. These challenges such as language barriers, racial discrimination, underemployment, the loss of support networks and changes in family role and structure may exacerbate a myriad of mental health issues. In addition, their help seeking behaviour as shaped by a general adherence to a collectivistic worldview and indirect communication style often creates challenges for the practitioners who are trained under a Western practice modality. Drawing on literature from English speaking countries with sizeable Asian immigrant populations such as the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United Kingdom, this text is designed especially for clinicians and students working with Asian immigrant populations. It discusses the therapeutic process in psychotherapy and counselling with these clients, exploring both key psychodynamic constructs and social systemic factors. Building on contemporary relational theory which emphasizes the centrality of the helping relationship and sensitivity to the client's subjective realities, the book demonstrates how western based concepts and skills can be broadened and applied in an Asiatic context and can be therapeutic even in social service and case management service settings. There are chapters on issues such as domestic violence, intergenerational conflicts, depression amongst elders and suicide, discussing the prevalence and nature of the mental health issues and each containing case vignettes from various Asian ethnic groups to illustrate the application of relational approaches. This book is an important cross cultural reference for practising social workers and counsellors as well as for social work students undertaking clinical practice courses.

The subject matter ranges from Alcoholism to Volunteerism and from Battered Adults to Suicide Prevention. Each chapter opens with a summary of professional knowledge on a specific problem and each lists many contact organizations. Health, the family, counseling, education, women's issues, crime, citizen action, emergencies and employment are the broad areas covered. Basic or national organizations listed will help readers locate more local or specialized ones Quarterly Journal of Studies on Alcohol, 1986 Includes sections: Activities of the Research Council on Problems of Alcohol and Current literature Violent Offenders Christina A. Warburton, Stephen

M. Stahl, 2016-04-28 The association between violence and mental illness is well studied yet remains highly controversial. Currently there does appear to be a trend of increasing violence in hospital settings including both civilly and forensically committed populations. In fact physical aggression is the primary reason for admission to many hospitals. Given that violence is now often both a reason for admission and a barrier to discharge there is a pressing need for violence to be re conceptualized as a primary medical condition not as the by product of one. Furthermore treatment settings need to be enhanced to address the new types of violence exhibited in inpatient environments and this modification needs to be geared toward balancing safety with treatment. This book focuses on violence from assessment through underlying neurobiology to treatment and other recommendations for practice. This will be of interest to forensic psychiatrists, general adult psychiatrists, psychiatric residents, psychologists, psychiatric social workers, and rehabilitation therapists.

Far From the Tree Andrew Solomon, 2012-11-13 Selected as One of the Best Books of the 21st Century by The New York Times WINNER of the National Book Critics Circle Award Books for a Better Life Award The New York Times Book Review's 10 Best Books of the Year. This masterpiece by the National Book Award winning author of The Noonday Demon features stories of parents who not only learn to deal with their exceptional children but also find profound meaning in doing so. A brave beautiful book that will expand your humanity. People Solomon's startling proposition in Far from the Tree is that being exceptional is at the core of the human condition that difference is what unites us. He writes about families coping with deafness, dwarfism, Down syndrome, autism, schizophrenia, or multiple severe disabilities with children who are prodigies, who are conceived in rape, who become criminals, who are transgender. While each of these characteristics is potentially isolating, the experience of difference within families is universal and Solomon documents triumphs of love over prejudice in every chapter. All parenting turns on a crucial question: to what extent should parents accept their children for who they are and to what extent they should help them become their best selves. Drawing on ten years of research and interviews with more than three hundred families, Solomon mines the eloquence of ordinary people facing extreme challenges. Elegantly reported by a spectacularly original and compassionate thinker, Far from the Tree explores how people who love each other must struggle to accept each other, a theme in every family's life.
