

The background of the book cover is a painting of a marsh landscape. In the foreground, there are patches of green and brown vegetation. A body of water, possibly a river or a large pond, flows through the middle ground, reflecting the sky. In the distance, there are rolling hills or mountains under a vast, cloudy sky. The overall style is that of a classical landscape painting.

Remote Sensing Advances in Biodiversity and Ecosystem Functioning Research Zhouyuan Li, Weiwei Sun, Yanjie Xu, Jixi Gao, Shijia Peng, 2024-02-06 Different dimensions of biodiversity are increasingly appreciated as critical for maintaining the functions of ecosystems and their services to humans More recently with the emergence of functional biogeography functional diversity is of particular interest due to its strong links with ecosystem processes such as carbon water and energy exchange and climate mitigation The multi form diversity varies in space and time Understanding this variation across scales is important for tracking the resilience of Earth s ecosystem and the information on the ecosystem structural features provides necessary foundations for monitoring predicting the ecosystem functioning patterns and process of ecosystems from individual unit to its whole in a holistic manner In recent the high resolution high throughput non intrusive and large scale data on biodiversity monitoring and measurement are becoming a new trend toward enhancing the efficiency and coherency in ecological discovery Still the available multi scale data on multi dimensional diversity are incomplete and non representative taxonomically geographically and temporally Although the studies on functional traits and their relations with function continue to grow local observations on functional traits are limited Recently remote sensing has proved to be a critical technology for addressing this research gap Air and satellite borne spectrometers at different levels could develop novel diversity measurements and alternati

Marsh Amber Dawn Manfree, 2014 Suisun Marsh is a 470 km² wetland situated between the Sacramento San Joaquin Delta and San Pablo Bay in the San Francisco Estuary Today about 80 percent of the marsh plain is privately owned by duck hunting clubs and managed in accordance with conservation agreements A complex network of sloughs weaves through the Marsh providing habitat for numerous aquatic species Together the waterways and marsh plain support a stunning array of species provide exurban open space and are increasingly called upon to meet regional conservation objectives The Marsh is vulnerable to sea level rise impacts pollution and other human impacts so understanding how it functions so it can be successfully managed to meet the lofty objectives set out for it will be critically important in the decades ahead This study reviews landscape scale historical ecology of Suisun Marsh and examines recent variation in fish populations from a geographical perspective Chapter 1 presents the geomorphic and physical history of the landscape explaining processes driving wetland development and contributing to unique functional subregions within the Marsh Chapter 2 examines human and animal landscape interactions Ecologically significant shifts in human and animal populations during the Spanish and Mexican eras followed by agricultural development in the late 1800s and duck club management starting around 1900 have kept the Marsh landscape continually changing The rate and magnitude of landscape change has intensified since European contact in 1769 and even more since the Gold Rush of 1849 Chapter 3 explores landscape scale variation in species distribution and abundance based on a long term study of Suisun Marsh fishes and invertebrates and presents these data in novel animations Animated maps are used to explore shifting populations of fishes and invertebrates from 1980 to 2013 demonstrating the value of long term biogeographical datasets in understanding biological communities at the landscape scale Understanding both the deep and recent history of the Marsh provides insights and inspiration informs management approaches points to potential restoration and rehabilitation targets and affects attitudes about appropriate human interactions with this dynamic biological system and landscape
