explicit the values actions thoughts and behaviors reflected in an African episteme that serves as the foundation for African Diasporan sociohistorical phenomenon events With such knowledge teachers can conceptualize curriculum and shape instruction that locates people in all cultures as subjects with agency whose actions embody their ongoing cultural legacy

Using Evidence in Policy and Practice Ian Goldman, Mine Pabari, 2020-06-10 This book asks how governments in Africa can use evidence to improve their policies and programmes and ultimately to achieve positive change for their citizens. Looking at different evidence sources across a range of contexts the book brings policy makers and researchers together to uncover what does and doesn't work and why. Case studies are drawn from five countries and the ECOWAS west African region and a range of sectors from education, wildlife, sanitation through to government procurement processes. The book is supported by a range of policy briefs and videos intended to be both practical and critically rigorous. It uses evidence sources such as evaluations, research synthesis and citizen engagement to show how these cases succeeded in informing policy and practice. The voices of policy makers are key to the book ensuring that the examples deployed are useful to practitioners and researchers alike. This innovative book will be perfect for policy makers, practitioners in government and civil society and researchers and academics with an interest in how evidence can be used to support policy making in Africa. Good Science Charis Thompson, 2013-12-20 An examination of a decade and a half of political controversy, ethical debate and scientific progress in stem cell research. After a decade and a half, human pluripotent stem cell research has been normalized. There may be no consensus on the status of the embryo, only a tacit agreement to disagree, but the debate now takes place in a context in which human stem cell research and related technologies already exist. In this book Charis Thompson investigates the evolution of the controversy over human pluripotent stem cell research in the United States and proposes a new ethical approach for good science. Thompson traces political, ethical and scientific developments that came together in what she characterizes as a procurial framing of innovation based on concern with procurement of pluripotent cells and cell lines a pro cures mandate and a proliferation of bio curatorial practices Thompson describes what she calls the ethical choreography that allowed research to go on as the controversy continued The intense ethical attention led to some important discoveries as scientists attempted to invent around ethical roadblocks Some ethical concerns were highly legible but others were hard to raise in the dominant procurial framing that allowed government funding for the practice of stem cell research to proceed despite controversy Thompson broadens the debate to include such related topics as animal and human research subjecthood and altruism Looking at fifteen years of stem cell debate and discoveries Thompson argues that good science and good ethics are mutually reinforcing rather than antithetical in contemporary biomedicine The Man who Killed Apartheid: The Life of Dimitri Tsafendas Harris Dousemetzis,2023-01-10 On 6

Living and Dying Well Charles Camosy, 2025-07-14. The complex paradoxical relationship with death in the consumerist West is playing out in ways that are quite dramatic. Our culture is now at a tipping point when it comes to physician-assisted killing (PAK). A Catholic understanding of what it means to die well, and by extension, what it means to live well, and what it means to help others to live and die well, provides an essential way of resisting the existential threat to human dignity posed by PAK. As individuals and communities, we must work to create a counterculture of encounter and hospitality to resist the eugenic culture of death and the throwaway culture of consumerism. Living and Dying Well builds on both Sacred Scripture and Tradition, diving into Jesus' paradigmatic example of how to die and live, and the example of saints, monks, and Catholic healthcare providers. This book challenges all of us to live and die with these values and practices in mind, as individuals, as families, and as broader Church communities and institutions. This book includes general and practical reminders for the last things, clinical red flags, and options for responding to physician-assisted killing, and trustworthy Catholic resources for end-of-life care.
