Global Inventory of National and Regional Qualifications Frameworks 2022 European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training, European Training Foundation, UNESCO, 2023-09-27 Ion Channel Signalling in Cancer: From Molecular Mechanisms to Therapeutics Elena Adinolfi, Lin-Hua Jiang, Sébastien Roger, 2021-08-02 All 3 Types of Glial Cells Are Important for Memory Formation Leif Hertz, Ye Chen, 2016-11-23

The vertebrate brain contains neurons and 3 classical types of glia cells astrocytes oligodendrocytes and microglia Astrocytes and microglia have mainly been studied in gray matter whereas oligodendrocytes myelinate white matter tracts Until recently microglial effects were considered mainly during pathological conditions but is now known that microglia plays important roles also in normal brain function All these 3 glial cell types and their collaboration with neurons are important for learning The concept that glia cells are important for cognitive function is not new A glial neuronal theory of brain function was proposed by Galambos in 1961 Hyden and Egyhazi demonstrated glial RNA changes in microdissected glia cells during learning in rats in 1963 and astrocytic and oligodendrocytic involvement of K mediated effects of learning has been suggested and or demonstrated from the 1960 s and onwards as recently reviewed by Hertz and Chen Neuroscience and Biobehavioural Reviews 2016 In 1969 van den Berg et al showed compartmentation of glutamate in brain and thus of production of the neurotransmitters glutamate and GABA which are essential for learning That glutamate is synthesized in astrocytes because they in contrast to neurons express the enzyme pyruvate carboxylase was demonstrated 10 15 years later by Yu et al in cultured astrocytes and Shank et al in intact brain tissue However the present e book focuses on more recent developments Most information is available about astrocytic roles in learning The importance of astrocytes in the tripartite synapse and of microglia in the tetrapartite synapse is illustrated in the front page figure which emphasizes the role of gliotransmitters and of Ca² transport through gap junctions coupling astrocytes into a functional syncytium Astrocytes are important for establishments of brain rhythms which may differ in different cognitive tasks and although the exact reason why knock out of the astrocytic water channel AQP4 impairs memory remains to be established several possibilities are discussed The importance of the two astrocyte specific processes glutamate and glutamine formation and glycogenolysis is discussed in considerable detail Glycogenolysis is important not only for astrocytic processes involved in learning but also for those in neurons because glycolytically derived lactate has signaling functions in the extracellular space and may be accumulated in minute quantities into very specific and small neuronal structures Some neurotransmitters stimulating glycogenolysis are also involved in psychiatric disease Noradrenaline released from locus coeruleus exerts direct effects on both astrocytes and neurons and in addition promotes secretion of corticotropin releasing hormone and adrenocorticotrophic hormone ACTH in brain and of glucocorticoids from the adrenal cortex all of which are responsible for stress effects on learning Lead causes memory impairment by inhibition of glutamine formation due to oxidative stress and reduced effectiveness of the glutathione system The many adverse effects of fetal alcohol exposure on behaviour and learning are caused by a multitude of effects on all three types of glia cells. Traumatic brain injury also exerts multifactorial effects including microglia astrocyte induced secretion of neuroinflammatory molecules and axonal disruption and oligodendrocytic dysfunction. In normal brain oligodendrocytes respond to the depolarization caused by neuronal activity with accelerated conduction velocity and increased compound action potentials which facilitate learning.

Inflammation and Immunity in Depression Bernhard Baune, 2018-05-23. Inflammation and Immunity in Depression: Basic Science and Clinical Applications is the first book to move beyond the established theory of cytokine induced depression and explore the broader role the immune system plays in this devastating mood disorder. The book fully explores the most recent lines of research into this rapidly advancing field including alterations of T cells, the neurobiological implications of neuroinflammation and immune alterations for brain development and function and the genetic components of neuroinflammation in depression including the relationships between stress and inflammation that are revealing gene environment interactions in the disorder. Combining contributions from researchers worldwide, this book provides the most comprehensive discussion available today on the involvement of the innate immune and adaptive immune systems in depressive disorder. Chapters span neuroscience, psychology, clinical applications and future directions, making this book an invaluable resource for advanced students, researchers and practitioners who need to understand the complex and varied role of inflammation and immune responses in depression. Synthesizes current knowledge of inflammation and immunity in depression ranging from basic neuroscience research to clinical applications in psychiatry. Expands on the long established theory of cytokine induced depression to discuss broader involvement of the immune system. Explores translational potential of targeting immune dysfunction for clinical interventions.

In the Research Topic History of Chemoattractant Research we will portray some of the key discoveries that helped to transform cell migration research into a global playing field within immunology and beyond. Early progress had a profound effect on both academia and industry. Today numerous academic laboratories are fully engaged in compiling a detailed road map describing the highly complex network of immune and tissue cells that respond to chemoattractants. Industrial research on the other hand centers on drugs that interfere with immune cell traffic in inflammatory diseases and cancer. The following series of short stories provide personal accounts on key discoveries. The individual molecular discoveries enabled numerous research laboratories worldwide to unravel their significance in steady state or pathological immune processes Although ground breaking in their own right it is therefore worth emphasizing that rapid progress in chemoattractant research was made possible by many other laboratories who were not directly involved in the original discovery process Therefore the authors of this mini series are discussing their findings in the context of time place and subsequent progress enabled by their discoveries It is hoped that a wide readership will find these accounts entertaining as well as educational although those who wish to gain a more detailed knowledge are referred to the many outstanding reviews on chemokines and other chemoattractants Insights in Molecular Diagnostics and Therapeutics: 2021 William C.

Haupt,Giovanni Blandino,2016-08-10 TP53 gene mutations are present in more than half of all human cancers The resulting proteins are mostly full length with a single amino acid change and are abundantly expressed in cancer cells Some of the mutant p53 proteins gain oncogenic functions GOF through which it actively contribute to the aberrant cell proliferation increased resistance to apoptotic stimuli and ability to metastasize Gain of function mutant p53 proteins can transcriptionally regulate the expression of a large plethora of target genes This mainly occurs through the formation of oncogenic transcriptional competent complexes that include mutant p53 protein known transcription factors posttranslational modifiers and scaffold proteins Mutant p53 protein can also transcriptionally regulate the expression of microRNAs small non coding RNAs that regulate gene expression at the posttranscriptional level Each microRNA can putatively target the expression of hundred mRNAs and consequently impact on many cellular functions Thus gain of function mutant p53 proteins can exert their oncogenic activities through the modulation of both non coding and coding regions of human genome Over the past 3 decades the regulation of p53 has been extensively studied However the regulation of mutant p53 remained largely unexplored This snapshot focuses on recent discovery of mutant p53 GOF and regulation Amino Acids, Peptides and academics in postcolonial Caribbean countries we have been trained to believe that research should be objective a measurable benefit to the public good and quantifiable in nature so as to generalize findings to develop knowledge societies for economic growth What happens however when the very word research connotes a derogatory term or semblance of distrust Smith 1999 speaks towards the distrustful nature of the term as a legacy of European imperialism and colonialism Against this backdrop how do Caribbean researchers leverage recognized and valued indigenous methods of knowing and understanding for and by the Caribbean populace How do we learn from indigenous research methods such as Kaupapa Maori Smith 1999 and develop an understanding of research that is emancipatory in nature Decolonizing qualitative methods are rooted in critical theory and grounded in social justice resistance change and emancipatory research for and by the Other Said 1978 Rodney s 1969 legacy of groundings provides a Caribbean oriented ethnographic approach to collecting data about people and culture It is an anti imperialist method of data collection focused on the socioeconomic and political environment within the post colonial context Similar to Rodney other critical Caribbean scholars have moved the research discourse to center on the notions of resistance struggle Chevannes 1995 Feraria 2009 and decolonizing methodologies This proposed edited volume will provide a collective body of scholarship for innovative uses of decolonizing qualitative research In order to theorize and conduct decolonizing research one can argue that the researcher as self and as the Other needs to be interrogated Borrowing from an autoethnographic ontology the researcher or investigator recognizes the self as the unit of measure and there is a concerted effort to continuously see the self seeing the self through and as the other Alexander 2005 Ellis 2004 This level of interrogation may require frameworks such as Reasonable Humanism in which there is a clear understanding of the role of the researcher and researched from a physiological and psychosocial standpoint Thereafter the researcher is better prepared to enter into a discourse about decolonizing methodologies The origins of qualitative inquiry in the Caribbean can be traced to political and economic discourses Marxism postcolonialism neocolonialism capitalism liberalism postmodernism which have challenged ways of knowing and the construction of knowledge Evans 2009 traced the origins of qualitative inquiry to slave narratives proprietor s journals missionaries reports and travelogues Common to the Caribbean is an understanding of how colonial legacies of research have ridiculed oral traditions language and ways of knowing often rendering them valueless and inconsequential This proposed edited volume acknowledges the significance of decolonizing approaches to qualitative research in the Caribbean and the wider Caribbean diaspora It includes an audience of scholars teacher researchers and students primarily in and across the humanities social sciences and educational studies This proposed volume would provide much needed knowledge and best practice strategies to the community of researchers engaged in decolonizing methodologies Additionally this volume will allow readers to think of new imaginings of research design that deconstruct power and privilege to benefit knowledge communities and participants It will spark key objectives directions and frameworks for deeper discussions and interrogations of normative westernized and hegemonic approaches to qualitative research Lastly the volume will welcome empirical studies of application of decolonizing methodologies and theoretical studies that frame critical discourse
