Rewriting Early Chinese Texts Edward L. Shaughnessy,2006-06-01 Rewriting Early Chinese Texts examines the problems of reconstituting and editing ancient manuscripts that will revise indeed rewrite Chinese history It is now generally recognized that the extensive archaeological discoveries made in China over the last three decades necessitate such a rewriting and will keep an army of scholars busy for years to come However this is by no means the first time China s historical record has needed rewriting In this book author Edward L Shaughnessy explores the issues involved in editing manuscripts rewriting them both today and in the past The book begins with a discussion of the difficulties encountered by modern archaeologists and paleographers working with manuscripts discovered in ancient tombs The challenges are considerable these texts are usually written in archaic script on bamboo strips and are typically fragmentary and in disarray It is not surprising that their new editions often meet with criticism from other scholars Shaughnessy then moves back in time to consider efforts to reconstitute similar bamboo strip manuscripts found in the late third century in a tomb in Jixian Henan He shows that editors at the time encountered many of the same difficulties faced by modern archaeologists and paleographers and that the first editions produced by a court appointed team of editors quickly prompted criticism from other scholars of the time Shaughnessy concludes with a detailed study of the editing of one of these texts the Bamboo Annals Zhushu jinian arguably the most important manuscript ever discovered in China Showing how at least two different competing editions of this text were produced by different editors and how the differences between them led later scholars to regard the original edition the only one still extant as a forgery Shaughnessy argues for this text s place in the rewriting of early Chinese history

book traces the evolving uses of writing to command assent and obedience in early China an evolution that culminated in the establishment of a textual canon as the foundation of imperial authority Its central theme is the emergence of this body of writings as the textual double of the state and of the text based sage as the double of the ruler The book examines the full range of writings employed in early China such as divinatory records written communications with ancestors government documents the collective writings of philosophical and textual traditions speeches attributed to historical figures chronicles verse anthologies commentaries and encyclopedic compendia Lewis shows how these writings served to administer populations control officials form new social groups invent new models of authority and create an artificial language whose master generated power and whose graphs became potent objects

Narrative Devices in the Shiji Lei Yang,2024-04-01 Provides a new model for reading the Shiji and other early Chinese historical texts Narrative Devices in the Shiji Retelling the Past offers the first systematic analysis of narratives in early Chinese historical writings from 400 BCE to 100 CE with a focus on the Shiji Records of the Historian a vast collection of historical accounts completed by Sima Qian 145 86 BCE For centuries the dominant approach to the Shiji has been to infer Sima s intentions from his biographical experiences and subsequently project them back into the text This has caused the import of the work to be overshadowed by Sima s tragedy of castration and has minimized the question of how narrative as a form affects the text's interpretation Lei Yang fills the gap by exploring how Sima manipulated the Shiji's narrative structure to represent the past Drawing on Gérard Genette's narratological theories the book examines how sequences of events build causality what is slowed down and sped up to manage information control and how the text provides multiple perspectives on the same events Redefining the Shiji's place as a turning point in Chinese textual history Narrative Devices in the Shiji sheds light on the evolution of early Chinese historiography As an interdisciplinary dialogue between Chinese texts and the Western theories it opens the Shiji to new interpretations and provides a novel framework for Chinese historical writings

The Flood Myths of Early China Mark Edward Lewis, 2012-02-01 Early Chinese ideas about the construction of an ordered human space received narrative form in a set of stories dealing with the rescue of the world and its inhabitants from a universal flood This book demonstrates how early Chinese stories of the re-creation of the world from a watery chaos provided principles underlying such fundamental units as the state lineage the married couple and even the human body These myths also supplied a charter for the major political and social institutions of Warring States 481–221 BC and early imperial 220 BC AD 220 China In some versions of the tales the flood was triggered by rebellion while other versions linked the taming of the flood with the creation of the institution of a lineage and still others linked the taming to the process in which the divided principles of the masculine and the feminine were joined in the married couple to produce an ordered household While availing themselves of earlier stories and of central religious rituals of the period these myths transformed earlier divinities or animal spirits into rulers or ministers and provided both etiologies and legitimization for the emerging political and social institutions that culminated in the creation of a unitary empire

The Early Chinese Empires Mark Edward Lewis, 2010-10-30 In 221 BC the First Emperor of Qin unified what would become the heart of a Chinese empire whose major features would endure for two millennia In the first of a six volume series on the history of imperial China Lewis highlights the key challenges facing court officials and scholars who set about governing an empire of such scale and diversity

The Imperial Network in Ancient China Maxim Korolkov, 2021-11-18 This book examines the emergence of imperial state in East Asia during the period ca 400 BCE–200 CE as a network based process showing how the geography of early interregional contacts south of the Yangzi River informed the directions of Sinitic state expansion Drawing from an extensive collection of sources including transmitted textual records archaeological evidence excavated legal manuscripts and archival documents from Liye this book demonstrates the breadth of human and material resources available to the empire builders of an early imperial network throughout southern East Asia from institutions and infrastructures to the relationships that facilitated circulation This network is shown to have been essential to the consolidation of Sinitic imperial rule in the sub-tropical zone south of the Yangzi against formidable environmental epidemiological and logistical odds This is also the first study to explore how the interplay between an imperial network and alternative frameworks of long distance interaction in ancient East Asia shaped the political economic trajectory of the Sinitic world and its involvement in Eurasian globalization

Contributing to debates around imperial state formation the applicability of world system models and the comparative study of empires The Imperial Network in Ancient China will be of significant interest to students and scholars of East Asian studies archaeology and history

centuries BCE the Western Han capital of Chang'an near today's Xi'an in northwest China outshone Augustan Rome in several ways while administering comparable numbers of imperial subjects and equally vast territories At its grandest during the last fifty years or so before the collapse of the dynasty in 9 CE Chang'an boasted imperial libraries with thousands of documents on bamboo and silk in a city nearly three times the size of Rome and nearly four times larger than Alexandria Many reforms instituted in this capital in the late Western Han substantially shaped not only the institutions of the Eastern Han (25-220 CE) but also the rest of imperial China until 1911 Although thousands of studies document imperial Rome's glory until now no book length work in a Western language has been devoted to Han Chang'an the reign of Emperor Chengdi whose accomplishments rival those of Augustus and Hadrian or the city's impressive library project (26-6 BCE) which ultimately produced the first state sponsored versions of many of the classics and masterworks that we hold in our hands today Chang'an 26 BCE addresses this deficiency using as a focal point the reign of Emperor Chengdi (r. 33-7 BCE) specifically the year in which the imperial library project began This in depth survey by some of the world's best scholars Chinese and Western explores the built environment sociopolitical transformations and leading figures of Chang'an making a strong case for the revision of historical assumptions about the two Han dynasties A multidisciplinary volume representing a wealth of scholarly perspectives the book draws on the established historical record and recent archaeological discoveries of thousands of tombs building foundations and remnants of walls and gates from Chang'an and its surrounding area

Conceiving the Empire

Fritz-Heiner Mutschler,Achim Mittag,2008-11-13 The essays in Conceiving the Empire: China and Rome Compared explore how the idea of empire arose and developed in the two most powerful polities in antiquity Extending its scope well beyond the notions of tianxia All under Heaven in China and imperium in Rome the volume deals with the mental images of empire that emerged with the formation of political macro entities in the East and in the West Written by a team of experts in Sinology and Classical Studies Conceiving the Empire concentrates on the essential feature of the ancient Mediterranean and Chinese worlds the emergence of empire and the enduring influence of the imperial order

BOOK JACKET The Construction of Space in Early China Mark Edward Lewis,2012-02-01 This book examines the formation of the Chinese empire through its reorganization and reinterpretation of its basic spatial units the human body the household the city the region and the world The central theme of the book is the way all these forms of ordered space were reshaped by the project of unification and how at the same time that unification was constrained and limited by the necessary survival of the units on which it was based Consequently as Mark Edward Lewis shows each level of spatial organization could achieve order and meaning only within an encompassing superior whole the body within the household the household within the lineage and state the city within the region and the region within the world empire while each level still contained within itself the smaller units from which it was formed The unity that was the empire's highest goal avoided collapse back into the original chaos of nondistinction only by preserving within itself the very divisions on the basis of family or region that it claimed to transcend
