Ndlovu,2023-03-01 This book's research is on online pedagogical approaches devised by teacher educators and researchers to circumvent a face to face curriculum delivery during the COVID 19 pandemic. The challenge faced by educators was that they were uncertain of how to use digital technologies in teaching learning and assessment productively. This book reports on case studies on teaching student teachers with technology in a way that advanced not only communication but also the cognitive growth of students in relation to disciplinary knowledge. The scholars from South African universities used both conceptual and empirical methodologies mostly in qualitative set ups. The scholarly contributions in this book are varied. They cover theoretical nuances for ICT use in education, considerations for the use of computers in the classroom, pedagogical thinking and pedagogical integration of ICTs in education, affordances of iPads in visible teaching and learning supporting student cognition in Languages, Mathematics, Science, Engineering, Graphics and Design with ICTs. The use of software applications such as GeoGebra and Excel in teaching and learning mathematics is researched among others. The rich discussions that emerged from their research enable academics to learn from others innovative moments that came as a result of pandemic pressure. The recommendations in this book can be used in blended learning beyond the COVID 19 era as curriculum delivery methods are bound to change. The value of this book is that it reports on pedagogical innovations in using digital technologies in teacher education. Researchers have an opportunity to learn from this book how to deal with the tantalising teaching and learning problem of our time. How can the use of digital technology transform teaching and learning in general and teacher education in particular.

Contextualising Rural Education in South African Schools

,2023-04-03 South Africa's democratic government inherited a divided and unequal system of education. Under apartheid, South Africa had nineteen different educational departments separated by race, language, geography and ideology. This education system prepared learners in different ways for the positions they were expected to occupy in social, economic and political life under apartheid and was funded and resourced in ways that favoured white people and disadvantaged black people who remain in the working class. The newly elected democratic government in 1994 laid a foundation for a single national education system. Twenty five years after the dawn of democracy, education is still in a parlous state in many communities in South Africa, but it is in the rural areas, mainly in the former homelands, that learners are most disadvantaged. nature and course of protests by making them subject to its fragmentation Protest is thus redefined as good neighbourly and demoted on account of its symbiotic relationship to apartheid It is observed that the proliferation of protests does not preclude the persistence of apartheid Rather protest and apartheid are seen to be compatible By examining protest hashtags on X from South Africa and Zimbabwe the book explores and identifies the forms relations meanings trajectories and effects protests take evoke and embody as fragments subsisting in a fractured apartheid universe It demonstrates how and why life goes on amidst protest sheds light on the contradictions paradoxes and complexities that characterise protest movements and invites conversations around protest as a paradigm in the context of apartheid The book will be of interest to researchers across the fields of social movements protests sociology African Studies and communication and media studies The Sage Handbook of Human Resource Development Tonette S.
