Journal of Research of the National Institute of Standards and Technology, 2001 Reports NIST research and development in the physical and engineering sciences in which the Institute is active These include physics chemistry engineering mathematics and computer sciences Emphasis on measurement methodology and the basic technology underlying standardization A fault detection method for FADS system based on interval-valued neutrosophic sets, belief rule base, and D-S evidence reasoning Qianlei Jia, Jiayue Hu, Weiguo Zhang, Fault detection with the characteristics of strong uncertainty and randomness has always been one of the research hotspots in the field of aerospace Considering that devices will inevitably encounter various unknown interference in the process of use which greatly limits the performance of many traditional fault detection methods Therefore the main aim of this paper is to address this problem from the perspective of uncertainty and randomness of measurement signal In information engineering interval valued neutrosophic sets IVNSs belief rule base BRB and Dempster Shafer D S evidence reasoning are always characterized by the strong ability in revealing uncertainty but each has its drawbacks As a result the three theories are firstly combined in this paper to form a powerful fault detection algorithm Besides a series of innovations are proposed to improve the method including a new score function based on p norm for IVNSs and a new approach of calculating the similarity between IVNSs which are both proved by authoritative prerequisites To illustrate the effectiveness of the proposed method flush air data sensing FADS a technologically advanced airborne sensor is adopted in this paper The aerodynamic model of FADS is analyzed in detail using knowledge of aerodynamics under subsonic and supersonic conditions meanwhile the high precision model is established based on the aerodynamic database obtained from CFD software Technical Abstract Bulletin, 1982 Handbook of Water and Wastewater Systems Protection Robert M. Clark, Simon Hakim, Avi Ostfeld, 2011-09-01 Following the events of

9 11 the Administrator of the US Environmental Protection Agency created the Water Protection Task Force WPTF which identified water and wastewater systems as a major area of vulnerability to deliberate attack The WPTF suggested that there are steps that can be taken to reduce these vulnerabilities and to make it as difficult as possible for potential saboteurs to succeed The WPTF recommended that be scrutinized with renewed vigor to secure water and wastewater systems against these possible threats It also recommended that water and wastewater systems have a response plan in place in the event an act of terrorism occurs The WPTF identified water distribution networks as an area of special vulnerability and highlighted the need for rapid on line detection methods that are accurate and have a wide detection range As a result of these recommendations novel technologies from various fields of science and engineering are now addressing water security issues and water and wastewater utilities are looking for innovative solutions Once such technologies are available there will be a rapid implementation process that will present many business opportunities for the private sector However in addition to terrorist threats water and wastewater systems are inherently vulnerable to natural disasters such as earthquakes and floods This volume will address the problems associated with both intended terrorist attacks and natural disasters affecting water or wastewater systems The book is divided into parts based on the kinds of threats facing water and wastewater systems 1 a direct attack on water and wastewater infrastructure storage reservoirs and distribution and collection networks 2 a cyber attack disabling the functionality of the water and wastewater systems or taking over control of key components which might result in system failures and 3 a deliberate chemical or biological contaminant injection at one of the waterdistribution system s nodes It will examine unique plans technological and managerial innovations for protecting such systems and includes descriptions of projects that were implemented to respond to natural disasters Case studies are presented that discuss existing projects and evaluate their performance with an emphasis on providing guidelines and techniques that can be implemented by water and wastewater planners and managers to deal with natural and manmade disasters should they occur
