

Harper Lee uses language in this extract to present the verdict as physically and mentally damaging to Jem, almost like a violent act. For example, "Judge Taylor was polling the jury: "Guilty... guilty... guilty... guilty..." I peeked at Jem: his hands were white from gripping the balcony rail, and his shoulders jerked as if each "guilty" was a separate stab between them." The simile comparing the verdict to a 'stab' emphasises how painful this moment is to Jem. The idea of a 'stab' links to the mental scarring that Jem is experiencing. Similarly the word 'jerked' suggests the character's realisation that nothing can overcome prejudice in Maycomb is being awoken and the pain is heightened by Jem's admiration for Tom and Atticus. In addition, the adjective 'white', used to describe Jem's hands, suggests that Jem is pale and weakened by the verdict, portraying the idea that his hope is dying. The 'white' features could even create a link to Boo Radley, as Jem also becomes a ghost-like victim of prejudice. This language influences the reader to feel anger towards the verdict as they realise, like Jem, that Maycomb has been unfair and unjust all along. Also the reader feels despair that despite all the danger and prejudice Atticus and his family has faced they still end up defeated.

Modern Entries John Lilly, 1723 Metaphor and Belief in The Faerie Queene Rufus Wood, 1997-08-29 Rufus Wood contextualizes his study of The Faerie Queene through an initial discussion of attitudes towards metaphor expressed in Elizabethan poetry He reveals how Elizabethan writers voice a commitment to metaphor as a means of discovering and exploring their world and shows how the concept of a metaphoric principle of structure underlying Elizabethan poetics generates an exciting interpretation of The Faerie Queene The debate which emerges concerning the use and abuse of metaphor in allegorical poetry provides a valuable contribution to the field of Spenser studies in particular and Renaissance literature in general

Biblical Metaphor Reconsidered Job Y. Jindo, 2018-07-17 How do we understand the characteristically extensive presence of imagery in biblical prophecy Poetic metaphor in prophetic writings has commonly been understood solely as an artistic flourish intended to create certain rhetorical effects It thus appears expendable and unrelated to the core content of the composition however engaging it may be aesthetically or otherwise Job Jindo invites us to reconsider this convention Applying recent studies in cognitive science he explores how we can view metaphor as the very essence of poetic prophecy namely metaphor as an indispensable mode to communicate prophetic insight Through a cognitive reading of Jeremiah 1 24 Jindo amply demonstrates the advantage and heuristic ramifications of this approach in biblical studies

Metaphor, Morality, and the Spirit in Romans 8:1-17 William E. W. Robinson, 2016-11-04 Engage compelling arguments that challenge prominent positions in Pauline studies In this innovative book William E W Robinson takes the reader on a journey through Romans 8 1 17 using Conceptual Metaphor Theory and Conceptual Integration Theory Robinson delineates the underlying cognitive metaphors their structure their function what they mean and how Paul's audiences then and now are able to comprehend their meaning He examines each metaphor in the light of relevant aspects of the Greco Roman world and Paul's Jewish background Robinson contends that Paul portrays the Spirit as the principal agent in the religious ethical life of believers At the same time his analysis demonstrates that the conceptual metaphors in Romans 8 1 17 convey the integral role of believers in ethical conduct In the process he addresses thorny theological issues such as whether Spirit and flesh signal an internal battle within believers or two conflicting ways of life Finally Robinson shows how this study is relevant to related Pauline passages and challenges scholars to incorporate these methods into their own investigation of biblical texts Features Sustained argument that sheds new light on how Paul communicates with his represents a bold attempt to address contemporary issues in both metaphor and psychotherapy research On one hand metaphor research is increasingly concerned not just with describing metaphors in discourse but how they could be used more adroitly in purposive real world contexts such as psychotherapy On the other hand while a growing number of mental health professionals believe that metaphors contribute in some way to the psychotherapy process their ability and willingness to use metaphors might be compromised by a relative unfamiliarity with the various nuanced aspects of metaphor theory The present analysis of metaphors in authentic psychotherapeutic talk brings these theoretical aspects to the forefront and suggests how they can be applied to enhance the use of communication of metaphors in psychotherapy It should be of interest to metaphor researchers mental health professionals and discourse analysts in general
