Modelling of Patterns in Space and Time W. Jäger, J.D. Murray, 2013-03-13. This volume contains a selection of papers presented at the workshop Modelling of Patterns in Space and Time organized by the Sonderforschungsbereich 123 Stochastische Mathematische Modelle in Heidelberg, July 4-8, 1983. The main aim of this workshop was to bring together physicists, chemists, biologists and mathematicians for an exchange of ideas and results in modelling patterns. Since the mathematical problems arising depend only partially on the particular field of applications, the interdisciplinary cooperation proved very useful. The workshop mainly treated phenomena showing spatial structures. The special areas covered were morphogenesis, growth in cell cultures, competition systems, structured populations, chemotaxis, chemical precipitation, space-time oscillations in chemical reactors, patterns in flames and fluids, and mathematical methods. The discussions between experimentalists and theoreticians were especially interesting and effective. The editors hope that these proceedings reflect at least partially the atmosphere of this workshop. For the convenience of the reader, the papers are ordered alphabetically according to authors. However, the table of contents can easily be grouped into the main topics of the workshop. For practical reasons, it was not possible to reproduce in colour the beautiful pictures of patterns shown at the workshop. Since a larger number of half-tone pictures could be included in this volume, the loss of information has however been kept to a minimum. The workshop has already stimulated cooperation between its participants and this volume is intended to spread this effect.
