The Best British Short Stories of 1922 Stacy Aumonier, 2018-10-17

Excerpt Never before have men had such opportunities for knowing the world never before has it been so easy to cover space our means of communication have never been so rapid yet there is an almost maddening contradiction in the fact that every man who writes is content in describing but a single facet of the great adventure of life Our age is an age of specialisation and many a man spends a life in trying to visualise for us a fragment of existence in multitudinous variations

An Empire may be said to stand for a universalising tendency yet the extraordinary fact about the mass of English stories today is that far from being expressive of any tendency to unity they are mostly concerned with presenting the specialised atmospheres of so many individual localities and vocations We have writers who do not go beyond Dartmoor or Park Lane or the East End of London we have writers of sea stories jungle stories detective stories lost jewel stories slum stories and we have writers who seldom stray from the cricket field or the prize ring or Freudian complexes

When Edward J O'Brien asked me to cooperate with him in choosing each year's best English short stories to be published as a companion volume to his annual selection of the best American short stories I had not realized that at the end of my arduous task which has involved the reading of many hundreds of stories in the English magazines of an entire year I should find myself asking the simple question What is a short story I do not suppose that a hundred years ago such a question could have occurred to any one Then all that a story was and could be was implied in the simple phrase Tell me a story We all know what that means How many stories published today would stand this simple if final test of being told by word of mouth I doubt whether fifty per cent would Surely the universality of the printing press and the linotype machine have done something to alter the character of literature just as the train and the telephone have done not a little to abolish polite correspondence Most stories of today are to be read not told Hence great importance must be attached to the manner of writing in some instances the whole effect of a modern tale is dependent on the manner of presentation Henry James is possibly an extreme example individual customers and creditors accounts in the Ledger The customers accounts are then segregated in another book called the Sales Ledger or Customers Ledger while the creditors accounts are kept in the Purchase or Creditors Ledger The original Ledger now much reduced in size is called the General Ledger The Trial Balance now refers to the accounts in the General Ledger It is evident that the task of taking a Trial Balance is greatly simplified because so many fewer accounts are involved A Schedule of Accounts Receivable is then prepared consisting of the balances found in the Sales Ledger and its total must agree with the balance of the Accounts Receivable account shown in the Trial Balance A similar Schedule of Accounts Payable made up of all the balances in the Purchase Ledger is prepared and it must agree with the balance of the Accounts Payable account of the General Ledger The Balance Sheet In the more elementary part of the text the student learned how to prepare a Statement of Assets and Liabilities for the purpose of disclosing the net capital of an enterprise In the present chapter he was shown how to prepare a similar statement the Balance Sheet For all practical
