BLACK STUDENTS FIGHT FOR
EQUITY FROM SEGREGATION
TO PRESENT-DAY

Tulane admitted its first Black students in the fall of 1963. In 2019 Tulane enrolled a record-high 92 Black students. A look back at the history of the Black student experience at Tulane allows for reflection on the progress the institution has made and highlights a need for continued work.

Like most private institutions, especially in the South, Tulane did not admit Black students at the time of desegregation. Paul Tulane wrote in his 1882 letter of donation that the university should be used for "the promotion and encouragement of ... education among the white young persons in the city of New Orleans."

These words that became a part of the Tulane charter played a role in the Tulane Board's attitudes toward integration. In their book "Tulane: The Emergence of a Modern University," Clarence Mohr and Joseph Gordon write that "No members of the Board expressed enthusiasm over the prospect of admitting black students, and it seems likely that most who supported the idea did so reluctantly."

"I know that [integration] was contentious and that the institution fought long and hard to try to avoid [it] for as long as they could until they were absolutely forced to integrate," Tulane history professor Randy Sparks, who specializes in the Old and New South, said. "So I think it was a difficult task at Tulane as it was at many southern institutions and most other southern institutions."

This did not stop Tulane from admitting students from other underrepresented backgrounds who weren't Black, such as women and international exchange students. Keira Williams, a lecturer in the school of history, anthropology, philosophy and politics at Queen's University Belfast wrote about these practices.
