

Animal Rights and Ethics

Introduction

Animal ethics is a complex subject. Rational argument about the right and wrong way to treat animals is made more difficult by the deep love that many of us feel for animals. For philosophers it raises fundamental questions about the basis of moral rights. So is there any statement of animal ethics that people on both sides might accept? The suggestion is that this is the most they could agree on: Higher animals have a moral status and there are right and wrong ways of treating them.

Animals and humans

Throughout the Animal Ethics section the term 'non-human animals' has been used for clarity, since the animal kingdom is often taken to include humanity.

Human and animal identity

The most difficult part of animal rights and welfare for human beings has been summed up by Colin McGinn:

...it is important to see that animals are not defined by their relation to us. Most animals, after all, have lived out their spans in sublime indifference to the habits of those odd chattering bipeds with the removable plumage. Even if we had never existed, they would still be here. We are just as accidental to them as they are to us. (Colin McGinn, Social Research, Vol. 62, 1995)

How far should we go?

Most animal rights activists are concerned with preventing cruelty to animals - but should we go further? Does ensuring animal welfare require providing for animal happiness as well as eliminating suffering?

Controversies

The main controversies in animal ethics are these:

- Experiments on animals
- Rearing and killing animals for food
- Rearing and killing animals for fur/leather goods
- Hunting
- Entertainment
- Zoos
- Pet-keeping

Animal Rights Without Liberation Alasdair Cochrane, 2012-08-21 Alasdair Cochrane introduces an entirely new theory of animal rights grounded in their interests as sentient beings He then applies this theory to different and underexplored policy areas such as genetic engineering pet keeping indigenous hunting and religious slaughter In contrast to other proponents of animal rights Cochrane claims that because most sentient animals are not autonomous agents they have no intrinsic interest in liberty As such he argues that our obligations to animals lie in ending practices that cause their suffering and death and do not require the liberation of animals Cochrane s interest based rights approach weighs the interests of animals to determine which is sufficient to impose strict duties on humans In so doing Cochrane acknowledges that sentient animals have a clear and discernable right not to be made to suffer and not to be killed but he argues that they do not have a prima facie right to liberty Because most animals possess no interest in leading freely chosen lives humans have no moral obligation to liberate them Moving beyond theory to the practical aspects of applied ethics this pragmatic volume provides much needed perspective on the realities and responsibilities of the human animal relationship

Animal Rights/human Rights David Alan Nibert,2002 This accessible and cutting edge work offers a new look at the history of western civilization one that brings into focus the interrelated suffering of oppressed humans and other animals Nibert argues persuasively that throughout history the exploitation of other animals has gone hand in hand with the oppression of women people of color and other oppressed groups He maintains that the oppression both of humans and of other species of animals is inextricably tangled within the structure of social arrangements Nibert asserts that human use and mistreatment of other animals are not natural and do little to further the human condition Nibert s analysis emphasizes the economic and elite driven character of prejudice discrimination and institutionalized repression of humans and other animals His examination of the economic entanglements of the oppression of human and other animals is supplemented with an analysis of ideological forces and the use of state power in this sociological expose of the grotesque uses of the oppressed past and present Nibert suggests that the liberation of devalued groups of humans is unlikely in a world that uses other animals as fodder for the continual growth and expansion of transnational corporations and conversely that animal liberation cannot take place when humans continue to be exploited and oppressed

The Animal Rights Debate Gary L. Francione, Robert Garner, 2010-10-26 Gary L Francione is a law professor and leading philosopher of animal rights theory Robert Garner is a political theorist specializing in the philosophy and politics of animal protection Francione maintains that we have no moral justification for using nonhumans and argues that because animals are property or economic commodities laws or industry practices requiring humane treatment will as a general matter fail to provide any meaningful level of protection Garner favors a version of animal rights that focuses on eliminating animal suffering and adopts a protectionist approach maintaining that although the traditional animal welfare ethic is philosophically flawed it can contribute strategically to the achievement of animal rights ends As they spar Francione and Garner deconstruct the animal protection movement in the United States the United Kingdom Europe and elsewhere discussing the practices of such organizations as PETA which joins with McDonald s and other animal users to improve the slaughter of animals They also examine American and European laws and campaigns from both the rights and welfare perspectives identifying weaknesses and strengths that give shape to future legislation and action
