Opinion on the Death Penalty

The death penalty, also referred to as capital punishment, has been abolished in Canada since 1976, but still exist in a few American States. The last execution in Canada took place in 1962.

I disagree with the death penalty for several reasons. My first reason is that I find it extremely inhumane to take someone's life in order to demonstrate the power of the law. Another reason for my disapproval of the death penalty, is the amount of money that it takes to put someone to death, as it would cost the same to keep an inmate in jail for life, as it would to put that same inmate to death. My third and final reason, is the guilty conscience that is placed on everyone involved: the jury who convicted...show more content...

Therefore, I do not feel that Canada should permit such a deplorable undertaking of a human life. I know they must be punished, but there is a better way.

Prior to putting someone to death, the accused's lawyer will attempt several appeals to the courts in order to lengthen the amount of time he has to live; and dependent on a technicality, or a sympathetic jury, the accused may be sentenced to life imprisonment. These appeals take up an abundance of court time and cost the public millions of dollars. With the cost of these appeals, it would cost the same amount to keep the same inmate in jail for a life term.

Would it not be better for the inmate to perhaps obtain an education or be given the chance to rehabilitate, rather than strapped to a chair and killed ??? I personally would rather see the inmate suffer in prison and have nothing to look forward to rather than letting the government put him out of his misery by killing him. To sentence someone to death takes one trial but to actually get some one in the chair to kill them could take a dozen of trials. The question must be asked why do we bother with this lengthy and costly process when we could sentence people to life in prison, at the same cost.

The killing of a human being is very traumatizing to all. Whenever the courts issue someone to death, the innocent everyday people who are involved must be affected. Just imagine how these normal human beings, like you and I,

Titles For Death Penalty Paper:

Don't Kill in Our Names Rachel King, 2003 Rachel King offers us the stories of families who understand the powerful reality that taking another life in the name of justice only perpetuates the tragedy I encourage others to read these stories to better understand their journey from despair and anger to some level of peace and even forgiveness Sister Helen Prejean CSJ author of Dead Man Walking Could you forgive the murderer of your husband Your mother Your son Families of murder victims are often ardent and very public supporters of the death penalty But the people whose stories appear in this book have chosen instead to forgive their loved ones murderers and many have developed personal relationships with the killers and have even worked to save their lives They have formed a nationwide group Murder Victims Families for Reconciliation MVFR to oppose the death penalty MVFR members are often treated as either saints or lunatics but the truth is that they are neither They are ordinary people who have responded to an extraordinary and devastating tragedy with courage and faith choosing reconciliation over retribution healing over hatred Believing that the death penalty is a form of social violence that only repeats and perpetuates the violence that claimed their loved ones lives they hold out the hope of redemption even for those who have committed the most hideous crimes Weaving third person narrative with wrenching first hand accounts King presents the stories of ten MVFR members Each is a heartrending tale of grief soul searching and of the challenge to choose forgiveness instead of revenge These stories which King sets in the context of the national discussion over the death penalty debate and restorative versus retributive justice will appeal not only to those who oppose the death penalty but also to those who strive to understand how people can forgive the seemingly unforgivable Rachel King is a legislative counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union s Washington national office where she lobbies on crime policy She is currently working on a book about the families of death row inmates Death Penalty USA, 2007-2008 Michelangelo Delfino, Mary E. Fighting the Death Penalty Eugene G. Wanger, 2017-04-01 Michigan is the only state in the country that has a death penalty prohibition in its constitution Eugene G Wanger s compelling arguments against capital punishment is a large reason it is there The forty pieces in this volume are writings created or used by the author who penned the prohibition clause during his fifty years as a death penalty abolitionist His extraordinary background in forensics law and political activity as constitutional convention delegate and co chairman of the Michigan Committee Against Capital Punishment has produced a remarkable collection It is not only a fifty year history of the anti death penalty argument in America it also is a detailed and challenging example of how the argument against capital punishment may be successfully made

The Death Penalty, Volume I Jacques Derrida, 2013-12-04 In this newest installment in Chicago s series of Jacques Derrida s seminars the renowned philosopher attempts one of his most ambitious goals the first truly philosophical argument against the death penalty While much has been written against the death penalty Derrida contends that Western philosophy is massively if not always overtly complicit with a logic in which a sovereign state has the right to take a life Haunted by this notion he turns to the key places where such logic has been established and to the place it has been most effectively challenged literature With his signature genius and patient yet dazzling readings of an impressive breadth of texts Derrida examines everything from the Bible to Plato to Camus to Jean Genet with special attention to Kant and post World War II juridical texts to draw the landscape of death penalty discourses Keeping clearly in view the death rows and execution chambers of the United States he shows how arguments surrounding cruel and unusual punishment depend on what he calls an anesthetical logic which has also driven the development of death penalty technology from the French guillotine to lethal injection Confronting a demand for philosophical rigor he pursues provocative analyses of the shortcomings of abolitionist discourse Above all he argues that the death penalty and its attendant technologies are products of a desire to put an end to one of the most fundamental qualities of our finite existence the radical uncertainty of when we will die Arriving at a critical juncture in history especially in the United States one of the last Christian inspired democracies to resist abolition The Death Penalty is both a timely response to an important ethical debate and a timeless addition to Derrida s esteemed body of work

Capital Punishment C. Cliff, 2003 The issue of capital punishment is a continually debated issue because it calls into question the values and direction of society How is a civilisation supposed to handle lawbreakers Are some crimes so heinous and some people so dangerous that the death penalty is the only appropriate response The United States Constitution prohibits cruel and unusual punishment but opinions on whether that includes capital punishment are vehement on both sides Many states have some form of death penalty and public opinion seems to indicate support of it in principle However many firestorms have erupted recently over the application of the penalty including the topics of its use on minors and those with mental disabilities There are also questions raised about how much of a factor race plays in a capital sentence Internationally several countries have foresworn the death penalty with certain countries in Europe and the Americas refusing to extradite criminal suspects including suspected terrorists to the US if capital punishment is a possible sentence With such politically flammable and ethically challenging issues hanging over it capital punishment is a vitally important issue to understand To help facilitate that study this book assembles a carefully selected and substantial listing of literature focussing on the death penalty Anyone researching this area of criminal justice will find this book an important tool as it offers easy access to the most relevant works about capital punishment Following the bibliography further access is provided with author title and subject indexes
