University Rankings Jung Cheol Shin, Robert K. Toutkoushian, Ulrich Teichler, 2011-06-06 This ground breaking and exhaustive analysis of university ranking surveys scrutinizes their theoretical bases methodological issues societal impact and policy implications providing readers with a deep understanding of these controversial comparators The authors propose that university rankings are misused by policymakers and institutional leaders alike They assert that these interested parties overlook the highly problematic internal logic of ranking methodologies even as they obsess over the surveys assessment of their status The result is that institutions suffer from short termism realigning their resources to maximize their relative rankings While rankings are widely used in policy and academic discussions this is the first book to explore the theoretical and methodological issues of ranking itself It is a welcome contribution to an often highly charged debate Far from showing how to manipulate the system this collection

Copyright Office, 1977 Newspapers in Transition Jim Cox, 2014-06-10 The impact of cyberspace on newsprint journalism is at the core of this text After a brief history of U S news dailies and weeklies it turns attention to those journals status today A wide range of forces that impinge on their success and failure are explored including the decline of their relevancy for an increasing percentage of the population Newspapers prospects for the future is the primary focus as papers curtail their dependency on historically physically delivered patterns to shift to more economical and faster methods of supplying the news Rivals for the attention of traditional readers are burgeoning Possibilities for the outcome over the next decade are investigated The profound effects of change on newsrooms advertising circulation economics and the place of newspapers and their communities are fully examined Choosing Students Wayne Camara, Ernest W. Kimmel, 2005-03-23 This volume brings a variety of perspectives to bear on the issue of how higher education institutions can or should choose students during the early part of the 21st century Many of the contributors report on research to develop and validate potential tools to assist those responsible for admission decisions Other contributors however pose broader questions about the nature of selective admissions about institutional responses to the changing demography of those seeking to enter higher education or about the appropriate criteria of success in higher education The volume is particularly timely because the question of how changes in admission tools and processes will affect campus diversity following the recent Supreme Court decision concerning the University of Michigan Diversity is an important concern of all of the contributors and the chapter by Lee Bollinger President at Michigan at the time the court cases were filed is particularly relevant This book brings together the research that underlies a variety of proposed approaches to improving the selection of students Providing support for the integrity of the admissions process and the validity of new tools to help a higher education institution to select a diverse student body this book explores the implications of the assessment component of K 12 school reform for higher education admissions practices The diverse contributions to this volume reflect the current ferment in educational research and educational practice as institutions of higher education seek to develop a new admissions paradigm for coming decades following the University of Michigan decisions This book is intended for those leaders and professionals who set admission policies and practices in American colleges and graduate and professional schools as well as for those scholars and scientists who research develop and validate tools for use in the process of choosing students in ways that are congruent with an institution s mission values and goals Black Males in Postsecondary Education Adriel A. Hilton, Chance W. Lewis, J. Luke Wood, 2012-11-01 Black Males in Postsecondary Institutions Examining their Experiences in Diverse Institutional Contexts offers a comprehensive examination of the experiences of Black males in our nation s higher education institutions In recognizing the role of institutions in fostering distinctive educational experiences this volume systematically explores the status academic achievement and educational realities of Black men within numerous institutional types i e community colleges For profit colleges Liberal arts colleges historically Black colleges and universities ivy league institutions religious affiliated institutions private institutions Hispanic serving institutions research intensive institutions and predominately White institutions In line with a core commitment towards transformative change chapter authors also provide recommendations for future research policy and practice aimed at fostering enhanced personal academic and career outcomes for Black men in college Expanding the Circle John C. Hawley, 2015-01-08 Examines strategies and best practices that effectively integrate LGBTQ areas of teaching and research with student life activities Many educational professionals agree that the time has come to expand their circle of inclusion and broaden their definition of diversity by increasing LGBTQ studies but the question of how to do so is still debated Although some colleges and universities have been incorporating LGBTQ studies for decades courses and programs continue to be pockets of innovation rather than models of inclusion for all of higher education Colleges and universities need to encourage faculty members to teach and research a wide range of LGBTQ topics as well as support student life professionals in building inclusive campus communities This book includes testimonies that alert educators to possible pitfalls and successes of their policies through an analysis of changing student attitudes Based on these case studies the contributors offer practical suggestions for the classroom and the provost's office demonstrating not only the gains that have been made by LGBTQ students and the institutions that serve them but also the tensions that remain Expanding the Circle is a comprehensive overview of issues facing LGBTQ students in higher education in the US and those seeking to queer the academy through incorporating LGBTQ content into curricula It highlights problems we might not have imagined a closeted gay man being harassed by those who are more out and describes issues we would have hoped were history faculty and staff telling students not to list a certificate in LGBTQ studies on a resume This book presents proven strategies to create affirming institutions of higher learning in which students and faculty can be their full selves and study the contributions of LGBTQ people to the human experience Sean Cahill coauthor of LGBT Youth in America's Schools

Profile of Contributors to the American Economic Review, 2010: Human Capital Theory, Gender and Race Amadu Kaba, 2013-08-07 This study begins by presenting an explanation of the Human Capital Theory and its relation to gender and race Next the methodology data availability and limitations section of the study is presented Next the study presents the statistical findings and analysis of the compiled and computed data Finally the study presents a discussion section focusing more attention on the various factors responsible for the wide gender and racial gaps in the statistics presented Engines of Anxiety Wendy Nelson Espeland, Michael Sauder, Wendy Espeland, 2016-05-09 Students and the public routinely consult various published college rankings to assess the quality of colleges and universities and easily compare different schools However many institutions have responded to the rankings in ways that benefit neither the schools nor their students In Engines of Anxiety sociologists Wendy Espeland and Michael Sauder delve deep into the mechanisms of law school rankings which have become a top priority within legal education Based on a wealth of observational data and over 200 in depth interviews with law students university deans and other administrators they show how the scramble for high rankings has affected the missions and practices of many law schools Engines of Anxiety tracks how rankings such as those published annually by the U S News World Report permeate every aspect of legal education beginning with the admissions process The authors find that prospective law students not only rely heavily on such rankings to evaluate school quality but also internalize rankings as expressions of their own abilities and flaws For example they often view rejections from first tier schools as a sign of personal failure The rankings also affect the decisions of admissions officers who try to balance admitting diverse classes with preserving the school s ranking which is dependent on factors such as the median LSAT score of the entering class Espeland and Sauder find that law schools face pressure to admit applicants with high test scores over lower scoring candidates who possess other favorable credentials Engines of Anxiety also reveals how rankings have influenced law schools career service departments Because graduates job placements play a major role in the rankings many institutions have shifted their career services resources toward tracking placements and away from counseling and network building In turn law firms regularly use school rankings to recruit and screen job candidates perpetuating a cycle in which highly ranked schools enjoy increasing prestige As a result the rankings create and reinforce a rigid hierarchy that penalizes lower tier schools that do not conform to the restrictive standards used in the rankings The authors show that as law schools compete to improve their rankings their programs become more homogenized and less accessible to non traditional students The ranking system is considered a valuable resource for learning about more than 200 law schools Yet Engines of Anxiety shows that the drive to increase a school s rankings has negative consequences for students educators and administrators and has implications for all educational programs that are quantified in similar ways
