Failing Law Schools Brian Z. Tamanaha, 2022-12-22 An essential title for anyone thinking of law school or concerned with America s dysfunctional legal system Library Journal On the surface law schools today are thriving Enrollments are on the rise and law professors are among the highest paid Yet behind the flourishing facade law schools are failing abjectly Recent front page stories have detailed widespread dubious practices including false reporting of LSAT and GPA scores misleading placement reports and the fundamental failure to prepare graduates to enter the profession Addressing all these problems and more is renowned legal scholar Brian Z. Tamanaha Piece by piece Tamanaha lays out the how and why of the crisis and the likely consequences if the current trend continues The out of pocket cost of obtaining a law degree at many schools now approaches 200 000 The average law school graduate's debt is around 100,000 the highest it has ever been while the legal job market is the worst in decades. Growing concern with the crisis in legal education has led to high profile coverage in the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times and many observers expect it soon will be the focus of congressional scrutiny. Bringing to the table his years of experience from within the legal academy, Tamanaha provides the perfect resource for assessing what's wrong with law schools and figuring out how to fix them. Failing Law Schools presents a comprehensive case for the negative side of the legal education debate and I am sure that many legal academics and every law school dean will be talking about it.

The National Science Foundation's Materials Research Science and Engineering Centers Program National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Physics and Astronomy, Solid State Sciences Committee, MRSEC Impact Assessment Committee, 2007-10-31

The Materials Research Science and Engineering Centers MRSEC Impact Assessment Committee was convened by the National Research Council in response to an informal request from the National Science Foundation. Charged to examine the impact of the MRSEC program and to provide guidance for the future, the committee included experts from across materials research as well as several from outside the field. The committee developed a general methodology to examine the MRSEC centers and after extensive research and analysis came to the following conclusions: MRSEC center awards continue to be in great demand. The intense competition within the community for them indicates a strong perceived value. Using more quantitative measures, the committee examined the performance and impact of MRSEC activities over the past decade in the areas of research facilities, education and outreach, and industrial collaboration and technology transfer. The MRSEC program has had important impacts of the same high standard of quality as those of other multi-investigator or individual investigator programs. Although the committee was largely unable to attribute observed impacts uniquely to the MRSEC program, MRSECs generally mobilize efforts that would not have occurred otherwise. Because of an observed decline in the effectiveness of the centers, the committee recommended a restructuring of the MRSEC program to allow more efficient use and leveraging of resources. The new program should fully invest in centers of excellence as well as in stand-alone teams of researchers to allow tighter focus on key strengths of the program. In its report, the committee outlines one potential vision for how this might be accomplished in a revenue-neutral fashion.

Identity Intersectionalities, Mentoring, and Work-Life (Im)Balance Katherine Cumings Mansfield, Anjalé D. Welton, Pei-Ling Lee, 2016-08-01

Identity matters. Who we are in terms of our intersecting identities such as gender, race, social class, disability, geography, and religion are integral to who we are and how we navigate work and life. Unfortunately, many people have yet to grasp this understanding and as a result, so many of our work spaces lack appropriate responses to what this means. Therefore, Identity Intersectionalities: Mentoring and Work-life Imbalance. Educators re-negotiate the personal, professional, and political. The most recent installment of the work-life balance series uses an intersectional perspective to critically examine the concept of work-life balance. In an effort to build on the first book in the series that focused on professors in educational leadership preparation programs the authors here represent educators across the P 20 pipeline primary and secondary schools in addition to higher education This book is also unique in that it includes the voices of practitioners students and academics from a variety of related disciplines within the education profession enabling the editors to include a diverse group of educators whose many voices speak to work life balance in unique and very personal ways Contributing authors challenge whether the concept of work life balance might be conceived as a privileged and even an impractical endeavor Yet the bottom line is conceptions of work life balance are exceptionally complex and vary widely depending on one s many roles and intersecting identities Moreover this book considers how mentoring is important to negotiating the politics that come with balancing work and life especially if those intersecting identities are frequently associated with unsolicited stereotypes that impede upon one s academic professional and personal pursuits in life Finally the editors argue that the power to authentically be ourselves is not only important to individual success but also beneficial to fostering an institutional culture and climate that is truly supportive of and responsive to diversity equity and justice Taken together the voices in this book are a clarion call for P 12 and higher education professionals and organizations to envision how identity intersectionalities might become an every day understanding a normalized appreciation and a customary commitment that translates into policy and practice
