Chapter 1 - On Equality

1. Equal voting rights

In a democratic country like India, all adults, regardless of their religious beliefs, education level, caste, rich or poor, can vote. This is called the universal adult franchise, and it is an important aspect of all democracies. The idea of universal suffrage for adults is based on the idea of equality.

2. Other types of equality

In addition to poverty, Indians also experience inequality based on the caste system.

3. Recognition of Dignity

When people are treated unequal, their dignity is violated. Dignity is a person's right to be valued and respected for himself and to be treated ethically.

4. Equality in Indian Democracy

The Constitution of India recognizes that all people are equal. This means that all people in the country, including men and women of all caste, religious, tribal, educational and economic backgrounds, are considered equal.
