The Oxford History of the Novel in English Cyrus R. K. Patell, Deborah Lindsay Williams, 2024-03-05 The Oxford History of the Novel in English is a twelve volume series presenting a comprehensive global and up to date history of English language prose fiction written by a large international team of scholars The series is concerned with novels as a whole not just the literary novel and each volume includes chapters on the processes of production distribution and reception and on popular fiction and the fictional sub genres as well as outlining the work of major novelists movements and tendencies This book offers an account of US fiction during a period demarcated by two traumatic moments the eve of the entry of the United States into the Second World War and the onset of the Covid 19 pandemic The aftermath of the Second World War was arguably the high point of US nationalism but in the years that followed US writers would increasingly explore the possibility that US democracy was a failure both at home and abroad For so many of the writers whose work this volume explores the idea of nation became suspect as did the idea of national literature as the foundation for US writing Looking at post 1940s writing the literary historian might well chart a movement within literary cultures away from nationalism and toward what we would call cosmopolitanism a perspective that fosters conversations between the occupants of different cultural spaces and that regards difference as an opportunity to be embraced rather than a problem to be solved During this period the novel has had significant competition for the US public s attention from other forms of narrative and media film television comic books videogames and the internet and the various forms of social media that it spawned If however the novel becomes a residual form during this period it is by no means archaic The novel has been reinvigorated over the past eighty years by its encounters with both emergent forms such as film television comic books and digital media and the emergent voices typically associated with multiculturalism in the United States

Representing (Post)Human Enhancement Technologies in

Twenty-First Century US Fiction Carmen Laguarda-Bueno,2022-10-07 This work studies three twenty first century novels by Richard Powers Dave Eggers and Don DeLillo as representative of a new trend of US fiction concerned with the topic of the technological augmentation of the human condition The different chapters provide from the double perspective of the optimistic transhumanist philosophy and the more balanced approach of critical posthumanism an overview of the narrative strategies used by the writers to explore the possibilities that biotechnology digital technologies and cryonics open up to transcend our human limitations while also warning their readers of their most nefarious consequences Ultimately the book puts forward the claim that even if the writers approach the subject from a variety of perspectives and using different narrative styles and techniques they all share a critical posthumanist fear that an unrestrained and unquestioned use of technology for enhancement purposes may bring about disembodiment and dehumanization

Urban Rehearsals and Novel Plots in the Early American City Betsy Klimasmith,2021-11-04 Urban Rehearsals and Novel Plots in the Early American City sheds new light on the literature of the early US by exploring how literature theatre architecture and images worked together to allow readers to imagine themselves as urbanites even before cities developed In the four decades following the Revolutionary War the new nation was a loose network of nascent cities connected by print Before a national culture could develop local city cultures took shape literary texts played key roles in helping new Americans become city people Drawing on extensive archival research Urban Rehearsals argues that literature particularly novels and plays allowed Bostonians to navigate the transition from colonial town to post revolution city enabled Philadelphians to grieve their experiences of the 1793 Yellow Fever epidemic and rebuild in the epidemic s aftermath and showed New Yorkers how the domestic practices that reinforced their urbanity could be opened to the broader public Throughout attention to underrepresented voices and texts calls attention to the possibilities for women immigrants and Black Americans in developing urban spaces while showing how those possibilities would be foreclosed as the nation developed Balancing attention to canonical texts of the early Republic including The Power of Sympathy Charlotte Temple and Benjamin Franklin s Autobiography with novels whose depiction of early cities deserves greater attention such as Ormond The Boarding School Monima and Kelroy this volume shows how US cities developed on the pages and stages of the early Republic building urban imaginations that would construct the nation's early cities The Bookmart, 1887 Narrative Care: Biopolitics and the Novel Arne De Boever, 2013-03-28 If the September 11 terror attacks opened up an era of crises and exceptions of which we are yet to see the end it is perhaps not surprising that care has emerged in the early twenty first century as a key political issue This book approaches contemporary narratives of care through the lens of a growing body of theoretical writings on biopolitics Through close readings of J M Coetzee's Slow Man Kazuo Ishiguro's Never Let Me Go Paul Auster's The Book of Illusions and Tom McCarthy's Remainder it seeks to reframe debates about realism in the novel ranging from Ian Watt to Zadie Smith as engagements with the novel's biopolitical origins its relation to pastoral care the camps and the welfare state Within such an understanding of the novel what possibilities for a critical aesthetics of existence does the contemporary novel include

Experience closes by exploring the convergence of the literature of experience and the literature of the reader in the first decades of the twenty first century arguing that the post Bola o moment has produced the strongest signs of a truly reciprocal literature of the Americas in more than a hundred years A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier,2012-02-25 As television transformed American culture in the 1950s critics feared the influence of this newly pervasive mass medium on the nation s literature While many studies have addressed the rhetorical response of artists and intellectuals to mid twentieth century mass culture the relationship between the emergence of this culture and the production of novels has gone largely unexamined In A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier illuminates the complex ties between postwar mass culture and the making marketing and reception of American fiction Between 1948 when television began its ascendancy and 1959 when Random House became a publicly owned corporation the way American novels were produced and distributed changed considerably Analyzing a range of mid century novels including Paul Bowles s The Sheltering Sky Ray Bradbury s Fahrenheit 451 Sloan Wilson s The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and Grace Metalious s Peyton Place Brier reveals the specific strategies used to carve out cultural and economic space for the American novel just as it seemed most under threat During this anxious historical moment the book business underwent an improbable expansion by capitalizing on an economic boom and a rising population of educated consumers and by forming institutional alliances with educators and cold warriors to promote reading as both a cultural and political good A Novel Marketplace tells how the book trade and the novelists themselves successfully positioned their works as embattled holdouts against an oppressive mass culture even as publishers formed partnerships with mass culture institutions that foreshadowed the multimedia mergers to come in the 1960s As a foil for and a partner to literary institutions mass media corporations assisted in fostering the novel s development as both culture and commodity
